Introduction

The LEGO Group has been bringing the Star Wars™ galaxy into LEGO® form since 1999. Celebrate 20 years of this extraordinarily rich and detailed fantasy world—made entirely of LEGO bricks!

Delight in a wealth of movie-accurate details, from the steering vanes on a Tatooine skiff to the chin guns adorning the head of a lumbering AT-AT walker. Discover the endless creativity of the LEGO Group's designers as they use LEGO elements in surprising ways and make new elements especially for the sets.

Spot the differences between the movie originals and the LEGO versions, whether it's a change of color, a reconfigured interior, or a new feature. With LEGO® Star Wars™, curiosity is rewarded: headlights flip aside to reveal missile launchers, concealed compartments hide secret lightsabers, and Gungan subs sprout their own mini-subs in times of trouble.

Originally published in 2009, LEGO Star Wars: The Visual Dictionary has been thoroughly updated and expanded to celebrate the twentieth anniversary of the iconic and much-loved theme.

Ten years of LEGO designs have been added—yellow faces have become flesh-colored, starfighters and vehicles have been revised with even more detail and movie accuracy, and countless new Star Wars characters and sets have been translated into brick form.

Dive in and explore an ever-expanding galaxy of LEGO Star Wars sets, minifigures, and facts.

DATA BOXES

Throughout the book, LEGO Star Wars sets are identified with a data box, which lists the official name of the set, the year it was first released, the LEGO identification number of the set, the number of LEGO pieces or elements in the set, and the source that inspired the model.

20 Years of LEGO® Star Wars™

From the first simple playsets a long time ago, to far, far, and away the largest, most complex builds any LEGO® theme has ever seen—the LEGO® Star Wars™ galaxy has it all!

The first LEGO Star Wars sets go on sale. They showcase scenes and characters from the newly released Star Wars: Episode I The Phantom Menace.

The first LEGO models of the Millennium Falcon (set 7190) shown above and Slave I (set 7144) are released.

A unique, 1,868-piece bust of Darth Maul (set 10018) is released as part of the Ultimate Collector Series.

The first sets based on new movie Star Wars: Episode II Attack of the Clones include Republic Gunship (set 7163).

The first Jabba the Hutt minifigure features in Jabba's Palace (set 4480).

Lando Calrissian is the first LEGO Star Wars human character to have a non-yellow head.

1999

Builds based on the Original Trilogy (1977–1983) are also introduced.

2000

TIE INTERCEPTOR

The Ultimate Collector Series (UCS) launches with the above 703-piece TIE Interceptor (set 7181) and the 1,300-piece X-wing Fighter (set 7191).

2001

The first Imperial Shuttle set (set 7166) features red Royal Guard minifigures.

C-3PO gets the LEGO® Technic treatment (set 8007).

2002

Yoda becomes the first minifigure to have short legs.

The UCS Imperial Star Destroyer (set 10030) is the first LEGO set to top 3,000 pieces.

2003

A new range of Mini Building Sets includes pocket-sized AT-ATs, X-wings, and more.

AT-AT

X-WING
FIGHTER

The UCS Death Star II (set 10143) clocks in at a whopping 3,441 pieces.

Ten sets are released to tie-in with new animated TV series Star Wars: The Clone Wars. These include AT-TE Walker (set 7675) featuring new character Ahsoka Tano.

A 1,473-piece Y-wing Attack Starfighter (set 10134) joins the UCS range.

The first Sarlacc monster build features in Jabba's Sail Barge (set 6210).

A limited-edition run of 10,000 gold-chrome-plated C-3PO minifigures and five ultra-rare 14-karat gold versions (above) celebrate 30 years of Star Wars.

2004

TIE Fighter Collection (set 10131) is the first set to feature a Star Wars Legends vehicle—the TIE/D automated fighter.

2005

TIE ADVANCED

Vader's TIE Advanced (set 10175) and an Imperial AT-ST (set 10174) are the latest additions to the UCS line.

2006

The release of Star Wars: Episode III Revenge of the Sith is celebrated with sets such as Ultimate Lightsaber Duel (set 7257), featuring minifigures with light-up lightsabers.

2007

The UCS Millennium Falcon (set 10179) is the first set to have more than 5,000 pieces.

The Motorized Walking AT-AT (set 10178) is the only LEGO Star Wars set ever to feature Power Functions.

2008

Rogue Shadow (set 7672) depicts Galen Marek's ship from the Star Wars: The Force Unleashed video game.

The first Mos Eisley Cantina set (set 4501) introduces the first Greedo minifigure.

To mark the 10th anniversary of LEGO Star Wars, 10,000 chrome-effect Darth Vader minifigures are randomly inserted into sets.

The UCS Imperial Shuttle (set 10212) is released. It is made from 2,503 pieces, most of which are white.

New sets for Star Wars: The Clone Wars include Count Dooku's Solar Sailer (set 7752).

The first LEGO Star Wars Advent Calendar (set 7958) includes a Santa Yoda minifigure.

Anakin Skywalker and Sebulba's Podracers get their first update since 1999 (set 7962).

A UCS R2-D2 (set 10225) measures over 12 in (31 cm) tall.

JEK-14's Stealth Starfighter (set 75018) is released. It's based on the first LEGO Star Wars character, JEK-14.

The Clone Wars version of Maul (with mechanical legs) makes his debut in Mandalorian Speeder (set 75022).

2009

The 1,758-piece Republic Dropship with AT-OT Walker (set 10195) is the largest LEGO Star Wars set outside of the UCS range.

2010

A new wampa figure features in Hoth Wampa Cave (set 8089).

2011

At close to 50 in (124 cm) long, UCS Super Star Destroyer (set 10221) becomes the longest ever LEGO set.

UCS SUPER STAR DESTROYER

2012

Two sets tie in with the Star Wars: The Old Republic video game, including the Sith Fury-class Interceptor (set 9500).

2013

New UCS sets include the elaborate Ewok Village (set 10236).

The UCS Sandcrawler (set 75059) has 3,296 pieces.

The Microfighters range launches with six sets, including the TIE Interceptor.

The theatrical release of Episode VII The Force Awakens heralds a whole new wave of LEGO Star Wars heroes, in sets such as Poe's X-Wing Fighter (set 75102).

Animated TV series LEGO Star Wars: The Freemaker Adventures launches, along with tie-in sets StarScavenger (set 75147) and Eclipse Fighter (set 75145).

STARSCAVENGER

As Episode VIII The Last Jedi soars into cinemas, LEGO Star Wars tracks its hyperdrive into stores with sets such as First Order Heavy Assault Walker (set 75189).

The Kessel Run Millennium Falcon (set 75212) is one of eight sets marking the theatrical release of Solo: A Star Wars Story, featuring a young Han Solo.

2014

THE GHOST

Animated TV series Star Wars Rebels blasts onto screens and into LEGO sets, starting with the Ghost (set 75053) and the Phantom (set 75048).

New buildable figures such as General Grievous (set 75112) allow for character battles on a whole new scale.

2015

2016

The UCS Death Star (set 75159) is updated to include more than 4,000 pieces.

A new UCS Millennium Falcon (set 75192) is the only LEGO set ever to have more than 7,000 pieces.

2017

Fifteen years after it was first made into a LEGO set, Cloud City gets the Master Builder Set treatment (set 75222).

Meanwhile, an old Luke Skywalker makes his LEGO debut in Ach-To Island Training (set 75200).

2018

Chapter 1: The Fall of the Republic

Anakin Skywalker

Anakin's journey from a slave boy to perhaps the most capable and ambitious Jedi ever is filled with action and danger. Anakin has always been an incredible pilot and has flown everything from "borrowed" speeders to custom-designed Jedi starfighters during the Clone Wars. But Anakin's daring has its price: the loss of his hand in battle with Count Dooku starts a process of dehumanization that will end in the full body armor of Darth Vader.

ANAKIN (NABOO PILOT)

Anakin's Naboo Starfighter Microfighter minifigure (set 75223) is all set for action in a slave's tunic and helmet with flying goggles.

► Naboo Starfighter

As a boy, Anakin flies a Naboo N-1 starfighter and blows up the Trade Federation's Droid Control Ship. He fits in the cockpit, boarding the fighter via a ladder included with this set. Spring-loaded shooters can be used to fire at battle droids and destroyer droids and a mechanism on the underside ejects R2-D2 from the droid socket in case of trouble.

ANAKIN (PADAWAN)

YOUNG PADAWAN

Protecting Padmé Amidala, Anakin falls in love with the brave senator. He briefly wields a green lightsaber on Geonosis. This minifigure came with the Republic Gunship (set 75021).

► Coruscant Airspeeder

Teenage Anakin is now a headstrong Padawan, training under Jedi Master Obi-Wan Kenobi. Anakin wears a Padawan braid (printed on his minifigure's shirt). He and Obi-Wan sit in this airspeeder with its exposed turbojets. The Jedi can store their lightsabers in a secret compartment. Can the Jedi catch up with assassin Zam Wesell's speeder, as they weave through the skyscrapers of the city planet, Coruscant?

Pieces 253	Source EP II

PADMÉ (PEASANT DISGUISE)

UNDERCOVER QUEEN
When Anakin first meets his future wife, Padmé Naberrrie is disguised as a peasant for her trip to Tatooine. In Darth Maul's Sith Infiltrator (set 7961), Padmé has a natural skin tone.

Swoop Bike

Padawan Anakin borrows Owen Lars's swoop bike to rescue his mother from the two Tusken Raiders included with this set. The bike has an engine compartment behind Anakin. Watch out for that moisture vaporator, Anakin! (The vaporator comes with the set and opens to reveal secret controls.)

Jedi Starfighter

Anakin is now a Jedi Knight, with a scarred face, pilot headset, cyborg hand, and black robe. He pilots a custom yellow starfighter (actually, an Eta-2 Actis interceptor) with movable wings and R2-D2's accompanying minifigure fully seated in the astromech socket. The original version in 2005 featured only R2-D2's headpiece.

JEDI KNIGHT
After a lightsaber duel with Count Dooku, Anakin loses one of his hands, which is replaced with a cyborg one. Turn Anakin's head to reveal an angry expression. This minifigure came with the 2018 Anakin's Jedi Starfighter (set 75214).

ANAKIN
(JEDI)

The Twilight

Anakin's personal starship in the Clone Wars is a battered Corellian G9 Rigger-class freighter, the Twilight. Anakin first "borrows" the damaged ship from a landing platform on Teth, when he and Ahsoka Tano are rescuing Jabba the Hutt's son, Rotta. Anakin has since repaired and upgraded its weapons and systems.

Podracing

Ladies and gentlemen, Dugs and Hutts, please join us at the Boonta Eve Classic, the most keenly fought and downright dangerous podrace on Tatooine. Experienced racers Sebulba, Gasgano, and Aldar Beedo will power up their oversized podracers, while the human newcomer, nine-year-old Anakin Skywalker, climbs aboard his self-made machine, watched nervously by his supporters. The tension here is electric!

► Sebulba's Podracer

SEBULBA

The dastardly Dug named Sebulba is determined to win the Boonta Eve Classic—and he doesn't care what dirty tricks he uses to do so. Sebulba's Podracer includes secret flip-up saws that the Dug uses to saw through his rival racers' machines.

SLAVE SPECTATOR

A Mos Espa slave, the Rodian Wald cheers on Anakin as he races in the Boonta Eve Classic. But Wald doubts Anakin can win the race—after all, he's never even managed to finish a competition before.

▼ Anakin's Podracer

What's that blur on the Tatooine horizon? It's Anakin, in flying goggles, piloting his super-fast podracer with "glowing" power couplings and hinged front air scoops, for additional control when cornering. Anakin built the pod himself, and relies on his Force-aided reflexes while racing. Padmé hopes Anakin will at least survive this dangerous enterprise.

WATTO

JUNK DEALER

The Toydarian Watto is Anakin's master, and doesn't know that the boy has secretly built a podracer out of surplus parts. Watto loves to gamble, and usually bets heavily on the unscrupulous Sebulba.

Boonta Eve Podracers

Tatooine podracer pilots such as Gasgano and Aldar Beedo rely on super-fast vehicles to stand a chance of winning the Boonta Eve Classic. Beedo looks for ways to make his Mark IV Flat-Twin Turbojet Podracer even faster, while Gasgano fine-tunes his Ord Pedrovia Podracer. Watto's junkyard is the place to find spare parts and custom accessories, or even to build a new craft. Perhaps parts from Mawhonic's GPE-3130 racer might prove useful—but both racers know that the winged Toydarian drives a hard bargain.

These pit droids are fast workers, but quite accident-prone. They see by using a single photoreceptor. This one belongs to Sebulba and appears in Mos Espa Podrace (set 7171).

Other Podracers

Lined up and ready to race, simplified versions of Anakin's and Aldar Beedo's podracers rev up alongside Neva Kee's experimental machine, with its cockpit placed in front of the massive engines (which could be dangerous). TEACHER

As a Jedi Knight, Obi-Wan takes on an apprentice. Anakin proves to be a rebellious student, which may explain Obi-Wan's cross expression here. Until 2013, Episode II minifigures of Obi-Wan had yellow faces.

▶ Jedi Interceptor (Red)

During the battle above Coruscant, Kenobi pilots a red Eta-2 Actis interceptor. A full-bodied R4-P17 can sit in a specially designed well on the port wing. In the 2005 version of the ship (set 7283), only R4-P17's dome was attached to the wing.

▶ Jedi Interceptor (Blue)

After the destruction of his red Eta-2 interceptor in the Battle of Coruscant, Obi-Wan pilots a blue interceptor on his mission to Utapau, with a bronze-domed R4-G9 in the astromech socket. Like all interceptors, this ship is too small to feature a hyperdrive, so it can connect to an external hyperdrive booster ring. Jedi Master Kit Fisto, also included with the set, provides backup.

▶ Boga

On Utapau, Obi-Wan chases General Grievous by riding on a fast-moving reptilian varactyl called Boga. Boga shares his legs with the Dewback from the 2004 Mos Eisley Cantina (set 4501).

OBI-WAN (JEDI MASTER)

Now with the neat beard and short hair of a disciplined veteran Jedi, Obi-Wan hunts down General Grievous and confronts Anakin after he falls to the dark side.

Jedi Order

For millennia, the Jedi were the guardians of peace and justice in the galaxy. Within their massive temple on Coruscant, they trained children strong in the Force to become new generations of Padawans, Jedi Knights, and eventually Jedi Masters. During the Clone Wars, the Jedi became military leaders, fighting alongside clone troopers—but in vain. The Sith emerged victorious and destroyed the Jedi ranks as darkness engulfed the galaxy.

YODA

The title of Grand Master is given to the oldest and wisest member of the Jedi Order: Grand Master Yoda helped train Count Dooku before the Count abandoned the Jedi Order and joined the Sith. This 2019 minifigure, with its animation-style eye printing and head mold, looks like it could have jumped straight off the cinema screen.

Jedi Masters

A Jedi who has trained a Padawan through to Jedi Knighthood earns the rank of Jedi Master. Twelve senior Jedi Masters form the Jedi Council, which makes decisions for the entire Jedi Order. The many species who make up the Jedi Order have expanded the varied collection of LEGO minifigures with weird and wonderful new head pieces.

Mace Windu

A member of the Jedi Council, Mace is renowned for his skill with a lightsaber and his stern manner. His minifigure's saber blade is a unique purple. As a senior member of the Council, Mace commands great respect from younger Jedi, who rarely risk his wrath. Other minifigures with "bald" head pieces include Lobot, Asajj Ventress, Sugi, and Turk Falso.

OBI-WAN KENOBI

Once Qui-Gon's Padawan, Obi-Wan is promoted to Jedi Knight. He takes on Anakin Skywalker as his apprentice.

QUI-GON JINN

The esteemed Jedi Master has seven minifigure versions. This 2017 version includes gray hair details in the aging Jedi's beard.

AAYLA SECURA

A Twi'lek Jedi Knight, Aayla's 2017 minifigure appears in set 75182. Her legs show a printed rycrit-hide belt.

SAESEE TIIN

Saesee's second minifigure, from Palpatine's Arrest (set 9526) in 2012, has teeth bared for combat.

KI-ADI-MUNDI

The Cerean Jedi Ki-Adi-Mundi's minifigure has a cone head top with creases and a ponytail.

▲ Barriss Offee

Barriss is a by-the-book Padawan. Her 2018 minifigure features a new black dress piece, instead of a leg piece, and a long cape. Her face has blue tattoos and comes with two expressions—calm and angry.

▲ Ahsoka Tano

Young Ahsoka Tano is Anakin Skywalker's Jedi Padawan during the Clone Wars. She is a Togruta—a species with colorful skin and two long “head-tails.” The 2013 version of the minifigure features brown legs with a printed purple sash.

MYSTERY JEDI

The end of the Clone Wars sees most Jedi killed and the Jedi Temple ransacked, with many records lost. All we know about this Jedi (whose name may have been Bob) is that he once flew on a Republic gunship (set 7163).

JEDI BOB

AGEN KOLAR

An Iridonian Zabrak, Agen Kolar's 2012 minifigure shares a head-top design with fellow Zabrak Eeth Koth.

STASS ALLIE

This Tholothian Jedi appears in Homing Spider Droid (set 75016), in 2013. Her headdress is unique.

KIT FISTO

In 2007 Nautolan Jedi Kit Fisto was the first minifigure to have a rubber headpiece. His 2012 variant gained a cape.

LUMINARA UNDULI

The Mirialan Jedi is one of the last survivors of Order 66. This third version from 2016 has a dark-brown color scheme.

SHAAK TI

Shaak Ti's 2011 minifigure comes with a unique rubber head piece with head-tails at front and back.

EVEN PIELL

A scarred Lannik Jedi, Even appeared with the Jedi fighter of his friend Saesee Tiin in 2012.

COLEMAN TREBOR

A hulking Vurk Jedi, Coleman fights alongside Mace Windu in the 2013 AT-TE set (75019).

QUINLAN VOS

Unconventional Jedi Vos's 2016 minifigure includes a big hair piece to represent his long locks.

Jedi Fleet

The Jedi Knights' many missions on behalf of the Republic take them across the galaxy in a variety of transports, including the diplomatic cruisers called "Coruscant reds" and agile shuttles such as the T-6. With the arrival of the Clone Wars, the Jedi take to the spacelanes in starfighters specially made for them, becoming aces in dogfights against Separatist droid fighters and other enemies.

► Yoda's Jedi Starfighter

Jedi Master Yoda uses a modified Jedi Starfighter on a mission to the mysterious planet of Dagobah. The LEGO set includes astromech droid R2-D2, who accompanies Yoda. The fighter features Yoda's personal crest and spring-loaded shooters for fending off enemy ships during mission flights.

▼ T-6 Jedi Shuttle

The T-6 shuttle's cockpit is designed to remain upright during flight maneuvers, with the wings rotating around it. Thanks to LEGO designers, Anakin Skywalker, Obi-Wan Kenobi, Shaak Ti, and Saesee Tiin can use the cockpit as an escape pod—it detaches from the shuttle in case the craft takes too much of a beating in combat.

▼ Republic Cruiser

The red Republic cruiser Radiant VII carries Qui-Gon Jinn and Obi-Wan Kenobi to their diplomatic mission on Naboo. The ship also accommodates the Republic captain and pilot minifigures, with seats for the Jedi in the detachable salon pod. The ship has hidden blaster cannons, detachable landing gear, storage for guns and electrobinoculars, and a space speeder mini-vehicle. An R2-R7 droid provides inflight backup.

SALON POD
An oversized escape pod below the Republic Cruiser's bridge allows Qui-Gon and Obi-Wan to flee and activate a beacon to summon help.

► Jedi Starfighters

During the Clone Wars, the Jedi train on Delta-7B Aethersprite-class interceptors. These are innovative strike fighters built to respond to the lightning-fast reflexes of Force-wielding Jedi. Each fighter is tailored for its pilot and has its own quirks in both the galaxy far, far away and the LEGO world. Anakin's fighter has retractable landing gear, Ahsoka Tano and Mace Windu's ships can fire multiple missiles, Plo Koon's cockpit has an ejection seat, and Saesee Tiin's cockpit breaks away as an escape pod.

ASTROMECHS

Astromech droids help the Jedi plot safe courses through hyperspace, repair damage to their fighters, and handle the routines of spaceflight. Some develop personalities and a rapport with their Jedi partners. Most astromechs are variants of the same standard mold, but their varied color schemes and printed details make them individuals.

SAESEE TIIN'S JEDI STARFIGHTER

Chancellor Palpatine

Once a Senator from remote Naboo, Palpatine has cunningly risen to become Chancellor of the Republic. He has agreed to stay in office while the Republic battles the Separatists in the Clone Wars. What no one knows is that he secretly leads both sides in the conflict, and he is the hidden mastermind of the war. His true identity is Darth Sidious, the Sith Lord who seeks to destroy the Jedi and control the galaxy.

▼ Venator-Class Republic Attack Cruiser

The precursor to the Imperial Star Destroyer, the Venator-class attack cruiser has enough firepower to blast through Separatist battleships with ease. The interior hangar carries Supreme Chancellor Palpatine and two Senate commandos, while the crew comprises a clone pilot and a clone gunner.

PALPATINE'S ARREST

There are two minifigures of Palpatine in his red Chancellor robes. This 2012 version has him brandishing a secret Sith lightsaber that he uses when the Jedi arrive in his office in Palpatine's Arrest (set 9526).

▲ Separatist Shuttle

Palpatine secretly commands the wealthy Trade Federation. Neimoidian puppet leader Nute Gunray travels in a Sheathipede-class shuttle flown by a battle droid pilot, with two battle droids for security (Neimoidians are cowardly).

CAPTIVE LEADER
General Grievous seems to raid Coruscant and capture the Chancellor, carrying him off to his Separatist flagship.

PALPATINE (KIDNAPPED)

▼ Palpatine's Shuttle

Now Emperor, Palpatine races across the galaxy in his speedy Theta-class shuttle to rescue a badly injured Anakin, following Anakin's duel with Obi-Wan Kenobi on Mustafar. A clone pilot accompanies the Emperor, while a 2-1B medical droid stands ready to transform Anakin into Darth Vader.

Count Dooku

The lethal Sith Lord Count Dooku was once a Jedi, but he lost his faith in the Jedi Order and abandoned it, eventually becoming the political leader of the Separatists. In secret, Dooku is the apprentice of Darth Sidious, and is called Darth Tyrannus. He works to advance Sidious's plot to defeat the Jedi, not suspecting that his master plans to replace him with a younger, more powerful apprentice.

▼ Duel on Geonosis

Dooku flees the fight on Geonosis, seeking to escape with the secret plans for the Death Star. He duels with Yoda in an abandoned factory that serves as a hangar for the Count's Solar Sailer. Connected to a LEGO® Technic pole, Yoda's minifigure proves a nimble, acrobatic opponent—just watch out for falling columns!

▼ Dooku's Speeder Bike

Dooku's open-cockpit Flitknot speeder bike enables the Sith Lord to escape the Republic's forces on Geonosis. He flees Yoda in 2002 on a blue version and later, on a brown, more streamlined, version.

▼ Solar Sailer

Count Dooku's personal starship is an elegant Geonosian Solar Sailer, piloted by a FA-4 droid. Dooku and two MagnaGuards travel to battlefields, where Dooku then uses his speeder bike to meet Separatist leaders.

Sith Followers

“Always two there are. A Master and an apprentice.” Yoda explains that, for millennia, the secret Sith Order has preserved itself by passing down teachings while waiting for the right time to overthrow the Jedi and seize galactic control. But the Sith are deceitful by nature, with apprentices always plotting against their masters. And masters recruit beyond their apprentice to find other followers to do their bidding.

Sith Infiltrator

Darth Maul is Darth Sidious's apprentice. His Sith Infiltrator appears for the first time on Tatooine in search of Padmé Amidala. There are four versions of the ship, each with its own version of Maul's speeder bike. This ship has a large compartment in the center for the bike, and storage for Maul's probe droids.

SITH SPEEDER BIKE
Sith apprentice Darth Maul rides an open-cockpit speeder. This super-fast vehicle, with a powerful repulsor engine, can turn at high speed around obstacles. In this 2015 version, Darth Maul carries a lightsaber to fight Qui-Gon Jinn on Tatooine, in a set that also includes a young Anakin Skywalker.

▼ Sith Nightspeeder

The Dathomirian Asajj Ventress rides a fearsome speeder bike with a spiked hull while on a mission for the Nightsisters, witches who rule her home world of Dathomir. In battle, Asajj's bike and its sidecar can split off from the hulking portside engine pod, which can launch missiles at enemies. Asajj returns aboard the nightspeeder with Savage Opress—a warrior who will serve Count Dooku, but remain secretly loyal to the Nightsisters, who seek revenge on Dooku for his betrayal of Asajj.

ASAJJ VENTRESS

Asajj once trained as a Jedi, but turned to the dark side after the death of her Master, becoming Dooku's servant. She fights using twin lightsabers. The 2015 minifigure represents Asajj from the original Star Wars: The Clone Wars animated TV series (2003).

SAVAGE OPRESS

A Nightbrother from Dathomir, Savage was transformed into a deadly warrior by dark-side magic. Infuriated by Dooku's training and the Nightsisters' scheming, he fled in search of his lost brother, Darth Maul, who became his new teacher.

DARTH MAUL (APPRENTICE)

SITH APPRENTICE

Darth Sidious trained Maul from infancy, using cruelty and trickery to turn the young Zabrak into a ruthless warrior who would be an instrument of his will. As Sidious's sinister agent, Maul struck without warning against his Master's enemies. This minifigure, with Zabrak horns and a tattooed face and torso, was released with the Sith Infiltrator Microfighter (75224) in 2019.

▼ Darth Maul

Maul somehow survived being cut in half by Obi-Wan Kenobi, fleeing into the Outer Rim, but losing his sanity in exile. After Savage Opress found him, the Nightsisters' magic healed his mind and created cybernetic legs for him. Joined by Savage, Maul tried to take over the galactic underworld. This intimidating 2013 minifigure with unique leg pieces is from the Mandalorian Speeder (set 75022).

Republic Army

For generations, the Republic had no army, relying only on the Jedi Knights to maintain peace and justice in the galaxy. But the vast Separatist Droid Army forced Republic leaders to take decisive action. The Republic quickly amassed one of the largest armies ever seen, with millions of clone troopers led by Jedi generals and diverse, specialized vehicles designed for missions on the ground.

AT-AP Walker

The All Terrain Attack Pod (AT-AP) is a two-legged walker. Like the previous two LEGO AT-APs, this version has a third retractable stabilizer leg for extra stability. It is equipped with a massive blaster cannon and the roof and side doors open to reveal an interior cabin.

Republic Attack Shuttle

The Nu-class attack shuttle is a fast, long-range gunship with heavy armor, powerful shields, and a range of laser weaponry, though this model is also equipped to drop missiles from a bomb hatch on the underside. A clone pilot flies the ship, which carries Mace Windu and a clone trooper into battle.

Police Gunship

Fast and maneuverable, police gunships respond to trouble on the Republic capital of Coruscant. They are less heavily armed than attack gunships, as avoiding damage to crowded city blocks is more important than the ability to unleash a heavy bombardment. Clone troopers sometimes command these craft for military missions.

Republic Navy

The Republic defends its spacelanes and millions of worlds with a massive navy composed of giant warships; smaller transports and gunships; and sleek, speedy starfighters. Navy personnel include both clone officers and non-clones drawn from many species. These brave beings clash with Count Dooku's Separatist starships above countless planets as the Clone Wars rage.

Republic Gunship

Formally known as the Low Altitude Assault Transport/infantry (LAAT/i), the Republic gunship ferries clone troopers into battle and gives deadly air-to-air and air-to-ground support, raking targets with missiles and blaster fire. The Republic first used this versatile attack craft at the Battle of Geonosis, where they dropped off the surprise delivery of clone troopers that turned the tide of the battle.

▲ Troop Hangar

Fresh from the Geonosis battlefield, the 2013 LEGO gunship is chasing Count Dooku. The sliding door of the troop hangar glides across, though not all the way, just like the Episode II version of the ship.

Clone Troopers

CLONE TROOPER (PHASE I)

Phase I clone trooper minifigures wear basic white armor with white helmets. The printed legs are new for 2018.

At the start of the Clone Wars, clone troopers wear Phase I armor, which is loosely based on Jango Fett's Mandalorian shock trooper armor. Informally called "the body bucket," this armor is heavy and often uncomfortable. Colored stripes denote rank. During the later part of the Clone Wars, Phase II armor mainly replaces Phase I armor. Phase II armor is stronger, lighter, and more adaptable than the earlier type, with many specialist variations. Color now denotes unit affiliation rather than rank.

Phase I Clone Troopers

Early Phase I clones had a faceless black head piece and carried a LEGO loudhailer piece for a weapon. In 2008, a new version of the Phase I clone minifigure gave them flesh-colored heads and bespoke blasters.

ANATOMY OF A CLONE TROOPER
"Explode" this ARC trooper from Elite Clone Trooper and Commando Droid Battle Pack (set 9488) and you see just how complex a simple minifigure can get!

Phase I Clone Commanders

Promising clones are discovered early on in their production and are given special training, with more individuality than the troops they command. Commanders such as Wolffe, Fox, and Cody work closely with Jedi generals in the fight against the Separatists.

Phase II Clone Troopers

Later in the Clone Wars, the Republic created more sophisticated Phase II armor. As well as improved breath filters, it allows for greater agility in combat situations. Camouflage is also sometimes used on Phase II armor.

Separatist Army

Although mass armies are illegal at the start of the Clone Wars, many wealthy commercial bodies use private forces to enforce payments and collect debts. These forces are pooled to create the Separatist war machine, under the command of Count Dooku. Consisting of huge numbers of deadly droids backed by attack vehicles, the Separatist army assaults Republic worlds from one side of the galaxy to the other.

Armored AAT

The 2015 AAT glides into battle armed with laser weapons and two battle droids, which can fit inside the opening cockpit. Jar Jar Binks and his fellow Gungans do everything they can to stop the Trade Federation's battle tanks from taking control of their home world, Naboo.

TACTICAL DROID

► Infantry Battle Droid

Infantry battle droids make up the majority of the Separatist land troops. Early versions of the minifigure have two identical hands. From 2007 onward, battle droid minifigures have had a turned hand in order to properly hold a blaster.

COLLAPSIBLE SOLDIERS

Battlefield Droids

For years, the galaxy's wealthy, unsavory corporations enforced their will on customers with menacing weaponized droids designed to collect debts, force labor settlements, and eliminate rivals. When those corporations join together to form the Separatist Alliance, their droids become the muscle of the armies sent to invade Republic worlds, with Separatist factories working overtime to turn out new models.

▼ Tank Droid

Amphibious NR-N99 tank droids roll into battle on high-traction caterpillar treads. Three LEGO versions of the tank have been deployed: on Kashyyyk in 2005, one for the new Clone Wars movie in 2009, and this one on Geonossis in 2013. ▶ Spider Droid

Homing spider droids can cover great distances on their all-terrain legs. Their sensors lock on to enemy targets and their dish-shaped laser cannon provide sustained fire. Like the previous version (set 75016), the equator of the droid's head is repurposed from a wheel found in several LEGO motorcycle sets—a clever reuse that lets the top and bottom pieces rotate.

Separatist Navy

After their first success at the Battle of Geonosis, Separatist forces plot and scheme even greater exploits. The gigantic space battle above Coruscant, in which General Grievous attempts to kidnap Supreme Chancellor Palpatine, sees the use of a deadly range of specialized droid fighters. Other Separatist units batter enemy ground forces and civilian targets on contested planets such as Kashyyyk and Ryloth.

▼ Droid Gunship

Droid gunships are well-shielded heavy missile platforms (HMPs) designed for sub-orbital air strikes. They are relatively slow to maneuver, but their firepower is devastating. Droid brains usually control the gunships, but some modified versions include a cockpit for a battle droid pilot.

▼ Vulture Droid

The Trade Federation defends its battleships with swarms of these pilotless droid fighters, controlled by signals from a central Droid Control Ship. Vulture droids can also reorient their heads and walk on their wingtips, doing double duty as effective, if somewhat ungainly, patrol units. In flight mode, the vulture droid's wings retract to conceal weapons. When the ship lands, the wings reconfigure into walk mode. Not particularly intelligent, vulture droids overwhelm enemies through sheer numbers.

ROCKET BATTLE DROID

Droid Tri-Fighter

With a nose-mounted laser cannon and three light laser cannon, droid tri-fighters are deadlier than vulture droids. These agile, fast droids excel at dogfights with Republic starfighters. Some modified tri-fighters are piloted by battle droids that sit in their central spheres.

SPRING-LOADED MISSILE LAUNCHER

BUZZ DROID

Separatist fighters launch swarms of buzz droids as guided missiles. They hunt for enemy ships, slip through shields, and wreak havoc with their saws and graspers.

ROCKET BATTLE DROIDS

These modified B1 battle droids are designed for scouting missions deep in space. They hunt down and destroy enemies fleeing in escape pods. Commanders are recognizable by a yellow marking on their head.

ROCKET BATTLE DROID COMMANDER

General Grievous

The Supreme Commander of the Droid Armies is a villainous cyborg called General Grievous. Grievous does not consider himself a droid, however—and reacts savagely to anyone who calls him one. His hatred of the Jedi Knights in particular is long-standing and all-consuming. His only pleasure is defeating Jedi in battle and collecting their lightsabers as trophies.

Malevolence

General Grievous's flagship, the Malevolence, is one of the largest warships ever built. It strikes terror into Republic worlds, with no fleet able to stand up to its massive twin ion cannon, backed up with turbolasers. The Subjugator-class heavy cruiser has an internal transport train and the top of the LEGO model lifts off to reveal the inner ship.

▼ MagnaGuard Starfighter

The Separatists purchased the Rogue-class starfighter from the Baktoid Armor Workshop, adapting the tough little fighter's systems for larger pilots such as the MagnaGuards. This Rogue fighter has a hyperdrive, superior sensors, and a bevy of weapons, including laser cannon and missile launchers on elite models. Geonosians

During the Clone Wars, the hive-dwelling Geonosians are notorious for their huge factories that endlessly churn out battle droids for the Separatist Army. A winged elite class rules over this savage, caste-based society, with wingless drones doing all the work. Geonosian soldiers carry exotic sonic weapons and fly twin-pronged fighter ships.

POGGLE THE LESSER

A key Separatist leader, Poggle the Lesser takes his orders from Karina the Great, the hidden Queen of Geonosis, who dwells in a subterranean lair. Poggle's minifigure, with its impressive quadruple wings, appears in the Duel on Geonosis (set 75017) from 2013.

Geonosian Cannon

Geonosian soldiers deploy both hand-held sonic blasters and platform-mounted LRIK sonic cannons, which fire balls of high-impact concussive energy. The LRIK cannon is a scaled-up artillery version of the hand-held sonic blaster used by Geonosian drones belonging to the soldier caste. The cannon fires a sphere of sonic energy contained by a plasma charge. When the sphere hits its target, the plasma charge dissipates, releasing a devastating wave of sound. The cannon's platform can tilt up and down.

GEONOSIAN BATTLE DROIDS

The Geonosians designed the Separatists' battle droids as robot versions of themselves. These reddish-brown variants are camouflaged for battle on the desert surface of Geonosis.

GEONOSIAN

COMMANDER

GEONOSIAN PILOT

Ironically, Geonosian pilots lack wings. They receive orders through scent messages pumped into their starfighters' cockpits. The 2003 minifigure was dark gray; this 2011 redesign is light brown.

GEONOSIAN ZOMBIE

"Zombie" soldiers (actually exoskeletons controlled by brain-worm parasites) are captured in LEGO form by being muted gray and having tattered wings.

GEONOSIAN WARRIOR

Only Geonosian soldiers have functional wings. This 2012 minifigure, from the Geonosian Cannon set (9491), offers a more-detailed head mold than its 2003 predecessor.

Naboo and Gungans

It takes an invasion by the villainous Trade Federation to propel peaceful Naboo to consider war. Its inhabitants—human Naboo and amphibious Gungans—must band together and work with their Jedi protectors to repel the hordes of merciless battle droids.

▼ Naboo Swamp

Jedi Qui-Gon Jinn and Obi-Wan Kenobi land on Naboo to help its inhabitants. In the Naboo swamp, Qui-Gon Jinn uses his lightsaber to deflect blaster fire from battle droids on STAPs (Single Trooper Aerial Platforms) and shield his Gungan guide, Jar Jar Binks. The STAPs come with “invisible” stands to make them hover.

▲ Gungan Sub

Qui-Gon, Obi-Wan, and Jar Jar Binks travel to Theed from the underwater city of Otoh Gunga in a bongo, or Gungan sub. Naboo's watery depths are home to dangerous monsters. The 2012 set has bongo defenses not shown on-screen: a mine to scare off attackers, flick-fire missiles, and a detachable mini-sub for a quick getaway. It was also the first LEGO set to feature a Queen Amidala minifigure in all her royal garb.

▲ Gungan Patrol

Gungans ride large, flightless kaadu. These amphibious animals are fast and agile. Many kaadu are used as beasts of burden, though larger four-legged falumpasets are also popular. One of these kaadu is ridden by a Gungan soldier and is pulling a wagon carrying energy-ball ammunition into battle against the droid army. The energy balls roll out of the back of the wagon.

▼ Flash Speeder

Repulsorlift flash speeders are normally piloted by Naboo security officers. They are used for patrols in peacetime, but employed in the defense of Theed Palace during the invasion of Naboo.

JAR JAR BINKS

A good-hearted but clumsy exile from Otoh Gunga, Jar Jar helps save Naboo from the Trade Federation. He carries an energy shield and a plasma spear, known as a cesta, into battle. Back in 1999, his minifigure was the first to have a unique head sculpt.

Umbarans and Mandalorians

The Republic faces many perils in the galaxy's Outer Rim as the Clone Wars grind on. The shadowy world of Umbara is home to Separatist-allied soldiers whose technology rivals anything in the Republic. Mandalore is a neutral world, but ruthless warriors known as the Death Watch will stop at nothing to overthrow its ruler, the pacifist Duchess Satine.

Umbaran Cannon

On Umbara, one of the toughest opponents for the clones is the juggernaut or Mobile Heavy Cannon. A blast from this six-legged tank can wipe out an entire Republic platoon. This 2013 Umbaran MHC comes with Ahsoka Tano, a 212th Attack Battalion clone trooper and two Umbaran soldiers.

UMBARAN SOLDIER

The Death Watch

Duchess Satine insists Mandalore has left its warlike past behind. But a secretive band of armored warriors, the Death Watch, has allied itself with the Separatists. Well-armed and deadly, they seek to take over the planet.

Bounty Hunters

Bounty hunters track down and capture people in order to collect a fee, or bounty. These ruthless, capable hunters prefer to work alone, but occasionally they hire fellow professionals such as assassin Zam Wesell. One of the most legendary bounty hunters in the galaxy is Jango Fett.

► Jango Fett's Slave I

Jango Fett's Firespray-class patrol and attack ship, Slave I, is bristling with weapons, many of which are hidden in order to deliver devastating surprise assaults. The armaments consist of two four-barrel fold-out blaster cannon, twin rotating laser cannon, two concealed heat-seeking rocket launchers, and three drop-bombs, as well as a removable prisoner cage. A smuggling box can be magnetically attached to the underside of the ship. When the repulsorlift wings swivel, they rotate the cockpit from landing to flight mode.

▼ HH-87 Starhopper

HH-87 Starhoppers are tough little gunships favored by lawless organizations in the shadowy corners of the galaxy, such as Zygerrian slavers, pirates, and the Hutt clans. While on the Hutt home world of Nal Hutta, HH-87s piloted by Hutt servants hunt down a ship carrying the bounty hunter Cad Bane, who has fled to Nal Hutta with a disguised Obi-Wan.

Hired assassin Zam Wesell flies an airspeeder for quick getaways on risky missions. It is streamlined and fast, which makes it difficult for Anakin and Obi-Wan to give chase in a borrowed airspeeder through the towering spires of Coruscant. Zam's cockpit screen is hinged, and a hidden mechanism makes the wings fall off, re-creating the crash-landing at the end of the high-speed chase in the film.

ZAM WESELL

Bounty Hunter Assault Ship

During the Clone Wars, the Zabrak bounty hunter Sugi is captain of a gunship called the Halo. The craft was originally built for military strikes, but Sugi refitted it with a crew cabin and hold, making it suitable for longer-term missions. Sliding the top of the hull pivots the wings and allows access to a hidden compartment for stashing valuable cargo. The set comes with these three exclusive bounty-hunter minifigures—Aurra Sing, Embo, and Sugi.

Cad Bane's Speeder

Cad Bane and his crew favor these repulsorlift vehicles for their high speeds and agility. In one of his most daring raids, Bane and a gang of hired thugs attack the Senate Building in the heart of Coruscant, taking a group of Senators hostage and demanding that the Republic free crime lord Ziro the Hutt in exchange for the captives. Bane and his hunters, including Shahan Alama and an assassin droid, then flee the Senate.

CAD BANE

A Duros bounty hunter, Cad Bane is infamous across the galaxy for his ruthlessness and successful methods. He often works for the Sith Lord Darth Sidious.

Pirate Tank

Led by Hondo Ohnaka, Weequay pirates on the planet Florrum use starships, speeder bikes, and tanks to defend their base. For ground operations, Hondo depends on his WLO-5 tanks, which boast thick armor and heavy guns.

HONDO OHNAKA

Hondo Ohnaka believes in grog, loot, and good times, though he is not without a sense of honor. He shares his black epaulets with the bounty hunter Embo and a LEGO space officer.

Anakin Skywalker— Fallen Jedi

Tormented by visions of Padmé Amidala coming to harm, Anakin turns to Chancellor Palpatine, who hints that there is more to the Force than Jedi teachings. He also reveals his true identity: he is the Sith Lord Darth Sidious! Desperate to save Padmé, Anakin falls to the dark side, leading Sidious's assault on the Jedi and crossing lightsabers with his old master Obi-Wan Kenobi on the lava planet Mustafar.

▼ Palpatine's Arrest

Mace Windu assembles a party of Jedi to arrest Chancellor Palpatine, but the Sith Lord proves full of tricks and his office has many surprises: will Mace fall victim to the hidden locker of dark-side weapons, or get flung out of the set's breakaway window? Anakin docks his airspeeder and rushes into the fray, where he must choose between his loyalty to the Jedi and his hunger to learn the dark side's secrets.

▼ Jedi Interceptor

After swearing allegiance to Darth Sidious, Anakin becomes his apprentice. He attacks the Jedi Temple, and says goodbye to Padmé. Boarding his Jedi interceptor, Anakin travels to Mustafar to eliminate the Separatist leaders.

But Padmé and Obi-Wan follow him, leading to a fateful duel and tragic consequences. This 2012 set comes with five minifigures, including Nute Gunray and a battle droid.

SITH ANAKIN

ARISE DARTH VADER

Darth Sidious oversees Anakin's transformation into a ruthless cyborg. Now known as Sith Lord Darth Vader, he is more dangerous than ever before.

Wookiees

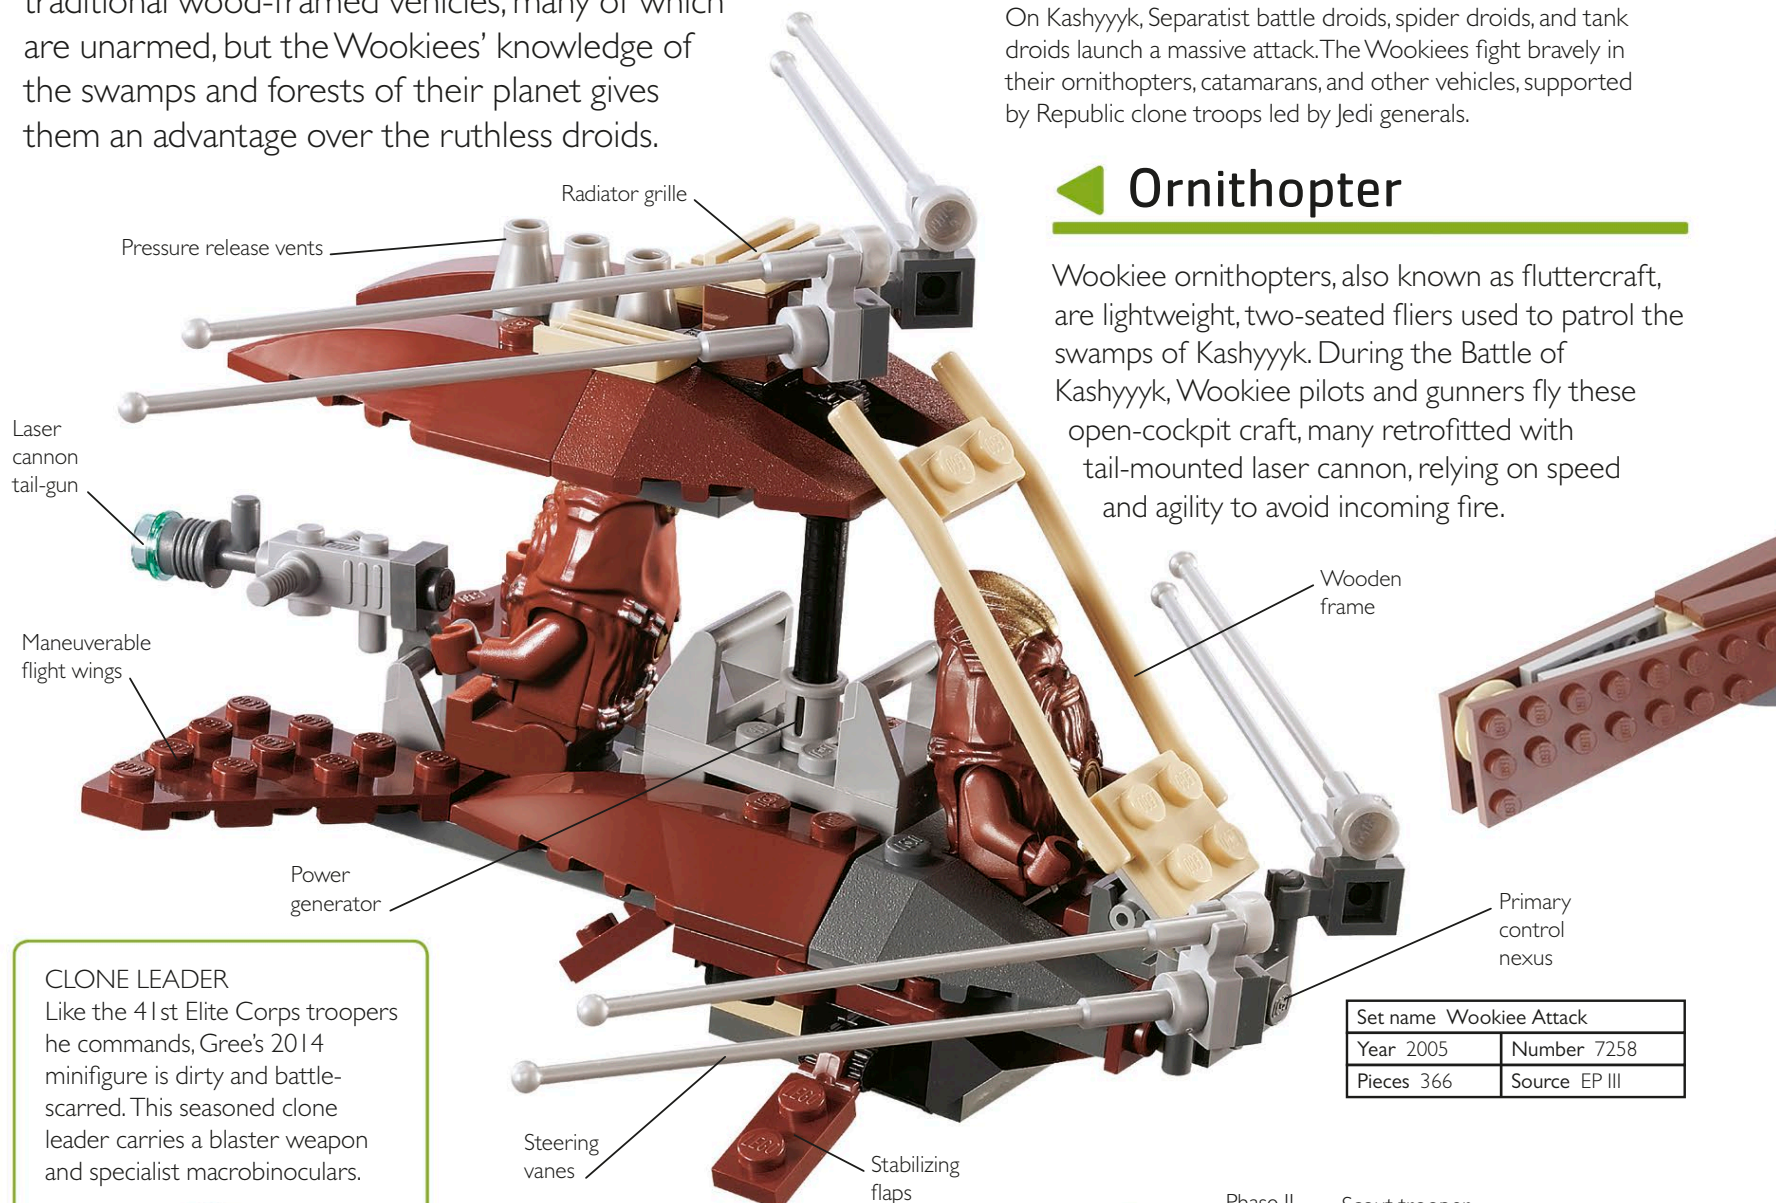

During the Clone Wars, an epic battle takes place on Kashyyyk, home planet of the Wookiees. Droid armies face fierce resistance from well-armed and proud Wookiee warriors, led by the chieftain Tarfful, and including Chewbacca. Wookiees use traditional wood-framed vehicles, many of which are unarmed, but the Wookiees' knowledge of the swamps and forests of their planet gives them an advantage over the ruthless droids.

On Kashyyyk, Separatist battle droids, spider droids, and tank droids launch a massive attack. The Wookiees fight bravely in their ornithopters, catamarans, and other vehicles, supported by Republic clone troops led by Jedi generals.

Ornithopter

Wookiee ornithopters, also known as fluttercraft, are lightweight, two-seated fliers used to patrol the swamps of Kashyyyk. During the Battle of Kashyyyk, Wookiee pilots and gunners fly these open-cockpit craft, many retrofitted with tail-mounted laser cannon, relying on speed and agility to avoid incoming fire.

CLONE LEADER

Like the 41st Elite Corps troopers he commands, Gree's 2014 minifigure is dirty and battle-scarred. This seasoned clone leader carries a blaster weapon and specialist macrobinoculars.

CLONE COMMANDER GREE

Catamaran

Slim, twin-hulled Wookiee catamarans skim over the waters of Kashyyyk at great speeds. During the Battle of Kashyyyk, Chewbacca joins forces with Yoda and Luminara Unduli on board a catamaran to make a raid on Separatist lines. Usually unarmed, this retrofitted catamaran features a centrally mounted heavy missile cannon and several bombs (dropped from each hull). CHEWBACCA
(REDDISH-BROWN)

BRICK FACTS

Reddish-brown Chewbacca appears in several Imperial-era sets: Death Star (set 10188), Millennium Falcon (set 4504) and the Ultimate Collector Millennium Falcon (set 10179), and X-Wing Fighter (set 6212). A brown Chewbacca appears in Imperial AT-ST (set 7127), Millennium Falcon (set 7190), and the minifigure pack Star Wars #3 (set 3342).

Chewbacca

Small and skinny for a Wookiee, Chewbacca fights against the Separatists' battle droids on Kashyyyk, firing energy bolts from his bowcaster. This 2014 version of Chewie's minifigure has a new mold, with visible teeth and new details in his multicolored fur and eyes. His bowcaster is now black. He's found in Droid Gunship (set 75042).

Chapter 2: The Galactic Civil War

GUNSLINGING HAN

In this 2018 minifigure, Han wears a gunslinger's belt and a holster that allows for a quick draw.

Han Solo

Han Solo is a hero of the Rebellion, but at one point he worked for the Empire! He didn't make a very good Imperial soldier, though, so he became a smuggler instead. The key to his success as a thief and a scoundrel is down to two things: his super-fast ship, the Millennium Falcon, and his brave co-pilot and best friend Chewbacca. Han and Chewie are happy being small-time crooks, but fate has a way of involving them in the galaxy's greatest struggles.

Millennium Falcon

According to its captain, Han Solo, the Millennium Falcon “may not look like much, but she’s got it where it counts.” It’s fast and well-equipped, though prone to malfunctions. Han and its previous captains have tinkered with its systems over the years, adding Imperial military-grade armor, quad laser cannon, an outsized sensor dish, and many other customized features—all of which require frequent repairs!

Engines

Moving at sublight speed, the Falcon relies on two heavily modified Girodyne SRB42 engines that emit glowing blue exhaust gases when fired up. Sublight drives propel starships within star systems or far enough away from planets so they can safely jump to hyperspace.

LUKE ON TATOOINE

On the desolate planet Tatooine, Luke wears a simple farm tunic, a utility belt for his tools, and leg bindings to keep out the planet's sand.

BRICK FACTS

In 2009, the LEGO Group made an exclusive Luke Skywalker minifigure for DK's LEGO® Star Wars™: The Visual Dictionary. Because the 2009 edition of the book celebrates 10 years of LEGO Star Wars, Luke is dressed for the celebration scene at the end of Star Wars: Episode IV A New Hope.

CELEBRATION LUKE

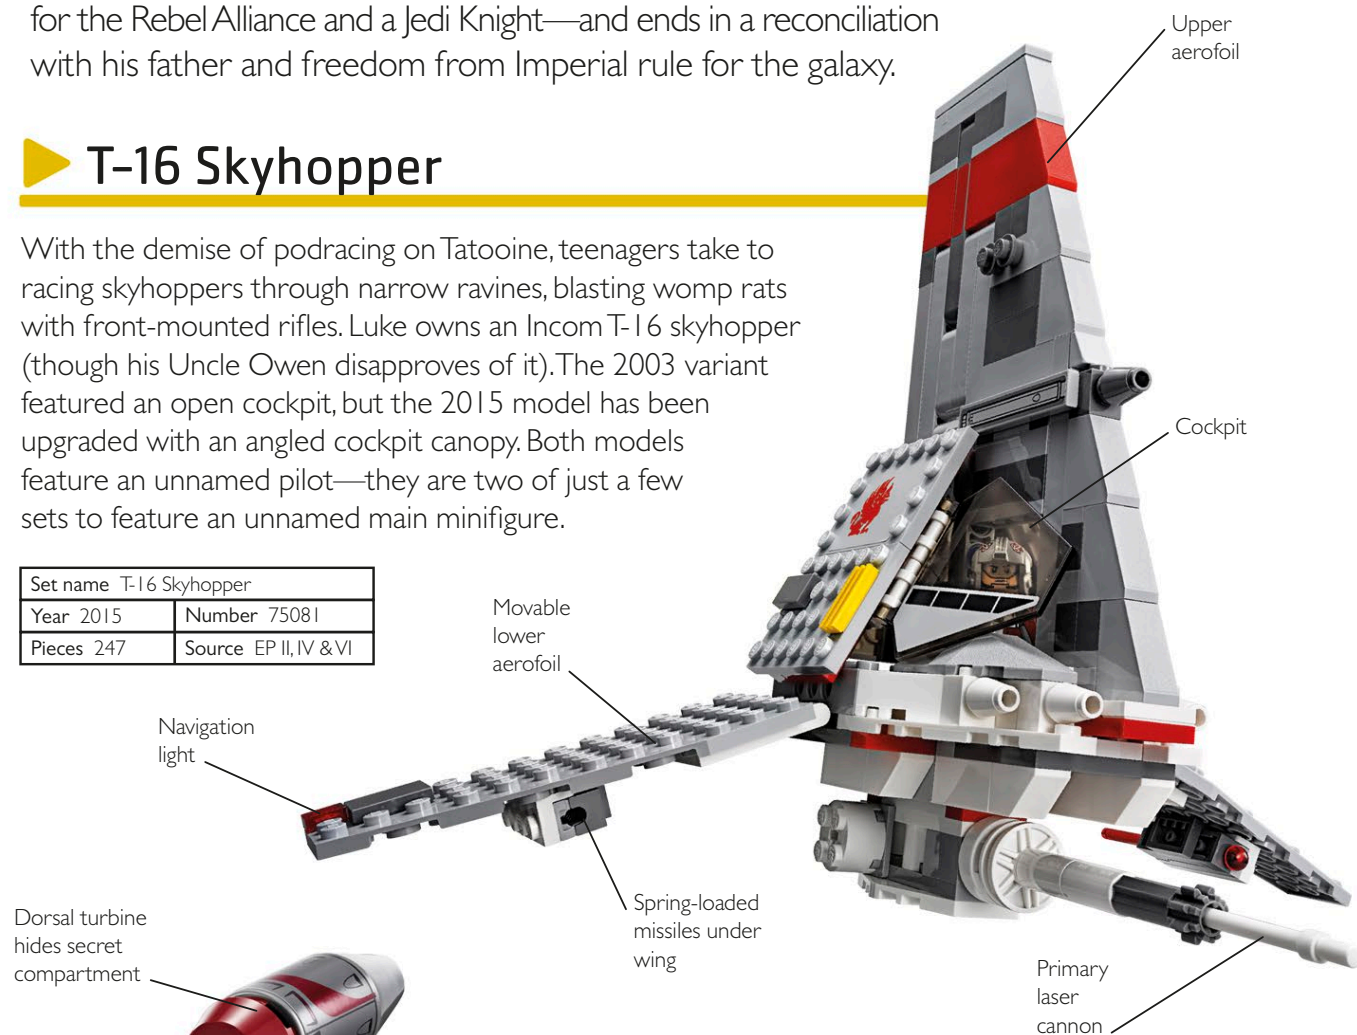

Luke Skywalker

Yearning for adventure, farm boy Luke Skywalker grows up on a remote planet named Tatooine. When he meets Obi-Wan Kenobi, Luke begins to learn the truth of his origins as the secret son of Anakin Skywalker. Luke's journey transforms him into a pilot for the Rebel Alliance and a Jedi Knight—and ends in a reconciliation with his father and freedom from Imperial rule for the galaxy.

► T-16 Skyhopper

With the demise of podracing on Tatooine, teenagers take to racing skyhoppers through narrow ravines, blasting womp rats with front-mounted rifles. Luke owns an Incom T-16 skyhopper (though his Uncle Owen disapproves of it). The 2003 variant featured an open cockpit, but the 2015 model has been upgraded with an angled cockpit canopy. Both models feature an unnamed pilot—they are two of just a few sets to feature an unnamed main minifigure.

▼ Escape Pod

C-3PO and R2-D2 slip into a small escape pod to avoid being caught by Darth Vader when he seizes the rebel blockade runner. After the droids crash-land on Tatooine, Jawas capture them and sell them to Owen Lars.

Tatooine

The barren desert planet of Tatooine is a dangerous, lawless world. The galaxy's most wretched hive of villainy has become a port of call for smugglers, pirates and gangsters. Life is tough for its inhabitants, who face water shortages, ferocious sandstorms and extreme heat. Fierce Tusken Raiders and scavenging Jawas have found ways to survive. Jawas patrol the deserts and wastelands in large sandcrawlers in search of salvage from spaceship crashes.

▼ Sandcrawler

Jawas have repurposed these old mining vehicles to round up stray droids, junked vehicles, scrap metal or minerals that can be used or sold. Each sandcrawler is home to an entire clan of Jawas, and serves as transport, workshop, travelling store—and protection from predators, such as rampaging Sand People.

Darth Vader's Castle

Darth Vader's menacing castle is on the volcanic planet of Mustafar, the site of his worst defeat. It's here that his former self, Anakin Skywalker, lost his lightsaber duel with Obi-Wan Kenobi, cementing his status as a Dark Lord. At his castle, Darth Vader meditates on the dark side of the Force and meets with his Imperial leaders.

► Darth Vader's Castle

The central stronghold of the castle is made of obsidian. It has high tuning towers that transmit dark powers. Red-hot magma flows beneath its foundations. The set features a brick-built lava flow and a circular area at the top with a defensive stud-shooter cannon operated by an Imperial transport pilot.

ROYAL GUARDS

The Royal Guards are formed from the most skilled soldiers in the Imperial military. They are known for their strength, intelligence, and loyalty—and their sinister crimson uniforms. Royal Guard minifigures carry a baton and wear long robes with a special hood element.

► Interior chambers

At the base of the castle is an underground hangar with a mouse droid and a docking station for a TIE Advanced fighter. Within the tower there is an ancient Sith shrine with a holocron, racks for ammunition, and a secret compartment hiding a lightsaber. There is also a bacta tank and a meditation chamber for Darth Vader, with a holographic communication unit.

Death Star

The Imperial battle station known as the Death Star is designed to quash potential dissent through displays of great force. The first Death Star uses its superweapon to obliterate Princess Leia's home planet, Alderaan. The second Death Star, though seemingly incomplete, is actually fully operational—and is intended to lure the rebels to their doom.

MOVIE ACTION

More than a dozen different scenes can be recreated within the playset, including the iconic duel between old enemies Obi-Wan and Vader.

Two Death Stars in One

The Death Star set combines aspects of the first and second Death Stars. Luke, for example, appears three times: in stormtrooper uniform to rescue Leia, in his regular outfit to swing across the air shaft, and as a Jedi Knight to battle Darth Vader.

DETENTION CELL

In her detention cell, Princess Leia refuses to give Vader the location of the rebel base. She even stands firm against the interrogator droid's ultrasonic and electroshock devices. Finally Luke and Han arrive to rescue her—and they all dive into a filthy trash compactor!

TURBOLASER CANNON

Death Star troopers operate a rotating and firing turbolaser cannon against rebel X-wing starfighters.

GARBAGE SQUID

Dianogas, or garbage squids, live in trash compactors, garbage pits, and sewers across the galaxy. They feed on scraps of decaying organic matter.

Tractor Beam

Obi-Wan Kenobi shuts down the tractor beam (the projected force-field used to capture the Millennium Falcon) but Darth Vader then confronts him, leading to a lightsaber duel.

STORMTROOPER

Nameless, faceless stormtroopers are utterly loyal to the Empire. The 2019 minifigure has a new updated helmet mold for the 20th anniversary that replaces a previous mold, in use since 2001.

Imperial Stormtroopers

The gleaming white ground troops of the Galactic Empire can be found on thousands of planets across the galaxy. Hidden behind imposing masks and blast-proof armor, they present a unified show of strength that few would dare to challenge. Yet, for all their seeming uniformity, there are many different kinds of stormtrooper, especially trained for different duties and environments.

Imperial Army

At the end of the Clone Wars, the Galactic Republic becomes an Empire and its military resources now serve the new regime. Clone troopers become stormtroopers, their ranks made up of clones and, now, human recruits. Stormtroopers have a huge arsenal of powerful ground vehicles to choose from, including giant armored walkers for smashing through enemy armies.

Imperial Conveyex Transport

A long line of armored cargo cars that can travel on both the top and underside of the track is an imposing sight—even for daring smugglers! Range troopers walk up the sides of these fast-moving trains in their magnetic boots, or using the studs on the sides of the LEGO version.

AT-AT DRIVER

Equipped with insulated jumpsuits and life-support packs, AT-AT drivers guide the huge walkers.

GENERAL VEERS

General Veers masterminds the devastating assault on the rebel base on Hoth from the cockpit of the lead AT-AT.

During the Battle of Hoth, the Empire deploys All Terrain Armored Transports (AT-ATs) against the rebels, knowing the mere sight of these walking tanks is enough to scare off most soldiers. An AT-AT's side opens to reveal a staging platform for the two snowtrooper minifigures and General Veers, who stand ready to attack the rebel artillery. An AT-AT driver steers the walker from a cockpit in its head.

TIE Variants

When Palpatine establishes his tyrannical Empire, the Republic's massive navy is appropriated and put to brutal use. Jedi-piloted interceptor starfighters, with their solar-panel wings, are reborn as aggressive TIE fighters. Indeed, the Imperial fleet is expanded with a variety of new, ever-deadlier models. The TIE fighter becomes a staple in the Imperial fleet.

R3-J2

This is the only LEGO astromech with a completely transparent dome.

TIE FIGHTER PILOT

Imperial fighter pilots are a specially trained, elite flying corps.

TIE Fighter

TIE fighters are armed with cannon and have no deflector shields or hyperdrive, making them light and agile in battle. These craft are mass-produced by the Empire and they swarm an enemy to take them out. This 2018 set includes a highly detailed design with an opening cockpit and two spring-loaded shooters. Four minifigures are included in the set: a TIE fighter pilot, an Imperial mudtrooper, Han Solo, and Tobias Beckett.

Single-pilot TIE bombers make precise "surgical strikes" that would be impractical for the Empire's capital ships. The ship's armaments include laser weapons and proton bombs that can be deployed against shielded targets, blasting open their hiding places.

IMPERIAL SHUTTLE PILOT

These pilots are handpicked for their loyalty as many fly to the Empire's most secret bases.

Imperial Transports

The Empire uses its distinctive tri-wing shuttles for ferrying troops, cargo, and VIPs. In most cases, the vessels have a fixed-position stabilizer wing on top and adjustable stabilizers on the sides. These side wings fold upward when a shuttle lands—not only to take up less space on the ground but also to provide a defensive shield for the central section.

► Tydirium

More elegant-looking than most Imperial ships, Lambda-class T-4a shuttles are often used to transport dignitaries up to and including the Emperor himself. The Tydirium is a T-4a shuttle that was stolen by the Rebel Alliance and used to mount a sneak attack on the second Death Star's shield generator on the forest moon of Endor.

AT-Hauler

The Y-45 Armored Transport (or AT) Hauler is not a shuttle, but is based on the same fold-up format as its less cumbersome cousins. Instead of wings, it has sturdy arms for shifting cargo, which rotate upward when not in use. In LEGO form, it is designed to carry the cargo wagon from the set Imperial Conveyex Transport (set 75217).

Star Destroyer

Dagger-shaped Star Destroyers are the most feared symbol of Imperial might, armed with fearsome firepower and powerful scanner and tractor-beam arrays. The Republic develops Victory-class Star Destroyers as capital ships in the final years of the Clone Wars, and the Emperor expands the fleet with new Imperial-class Star Destroyers, employed to crush and subdue worlds.

MEDITATION CHAMBER

On long space voyages, Darth Vader sits in his meditation chamber, or hyperbaric pod. In the high-pressure air mix within the chamber, Vader can remove his helmet (using a lifting mechanism) to reveal his horribly scarred face and head.

COMMAND BRIDGE

The bridge is situated at the center of the command tower, in view of any ship under attack. Grand Moff Tarkin and an Imperial officer stand at the flight consoles and tracking systems.

ESCAPE POD

The ship contains a life-support escape pod for emergency evacuations. Escape pods contain food and oxygen, as well as flares, a porta-shelter, and survival suits for passengers.

► Forward Systems

A Star Destroyer's nose contains powerful pursuit tractor beams. The model contains a mechanism that, when pulled, ejects the escape pod through a hatch in the ship's underside.

Early Rebel Craft

From the earliest days of the Empire, pockets of resistance gave people hope that democracy might one day return to the galaxy. Slowly, these rebel groups gained in strength and number, and started to work together to undermine the Empire. These different peoples traveled in a whole host of crafts and vehicles.

► The Ghost

The heavily modified VCX-100 light freighter called the Ghost is home to the rebel group known as the Spectres. The Ghost gets its name from its advanced stealth technology, which allows it to vanish from enemy sensors. At the rear of the ship is a docking station for the Spectres' shuttlecraft, the Phantom.

Rebel Alliance

Freedom fighters who have banded together as the Rebel Alliance are dedicated to the Empire's downfall. Some rebels are deserters from the Imperial forces, but many are untrained volunteers. With skilful leaders and a rag-tag assortment of ships and weapons, the rebels prove a serious threat to Emperor Palpatine's iron rule.

▼ Y-Wing Fighter

BTL-A4 Y-wings are old but tough workhorses of the rebel fleet, famously employed in the attacks on both Death Stars. They have hyperdrives, ion fission engines, and massive firepower. This trusty fighter was used during the Battle of Scarif to retrieve the plans for the Death Star. LEGO Technic gears open the bottom of the ship to deploy bombs.

Raddus is in charge of the rebel fleet. He perishes, along with his flagship Profundity, at the Battle of Scarif.

REBEL TECHNICIAN

ENGINEER CORPS
Rebel engineers and technicians maintain and repair spaceships and vehicles, among other tasks.

PRINCESS LEIA ORGANA

PRINCESS LEIA

A bold leader of the Rebellion, Princess Leia is kidnapped by the Empire and taken to the Death Star. Luke Skywalker and Leia try to outwit the battle station's crew in the LEGO set Death Star Escape (75229).

▼ Tantive IV

As a senator for Alderaan, Princess Leia Organa travels in a diplomatic starship, the Tantive IV. The ship also carries out covert missions for the Rebel Alliance—until Darth Vader pursues the ship and captures it.

CAPTAIN ANTILLES

Raymus Antilles is captain of Tantive IV. He has served the Organa family and the rebellion for years.

Rogue Heroes

When Jyn Erso finds out about a new Imperial superweapon, she realizes that the fate of the galaxy lies with whoever knows its secrets. She commits herself to the rebel cause and convinces a rag-tag band of heroes to join her on a mission to steal the Death Star plans. Calling their ship Rogue One, Jyn, Captain Cassian Andor, the droid K-2SO, and the rest of the team set course for the Imperial archive on the planet Scarif.

JYN ERSO

ALWAYS PREPARED
Jyn Erso's practical, protective clothes reflect the harsh environments in which she has often found herself. Her warm poncho comes in useful on the rain-soaked world of Eadu.

U-Wing

Unlike most starfighters, the U-wing is large enough to carry troops—deploying them in battle before providing covering fire. When the Rebel Alliance learned that Rogue One had successfully landed on Scarif, it sent U-wings to help Cassian and company complete their mission on the planet.

Echo Base

On the ice planet Hoth, the Rebel Alliance establishes its secret Echo Base, protected by an immense energy shield. When the Empire discovers the location of the base, it deploys AT-ATs and AT-STs to destroy the shield generator. The combined strength of rebel artillery emplacements and snowspeeder squadrons cannot prevent one of the Alliance's worst battlefield defeats.

PROTOCOL DROIDS

K-3PO is a white protocol droid who was given the rank of lieutenant in Hoth Rebel Base (set 7666). Exclusive to Hoth Echo Base (set 7879), R-3PO has special programming designed to ferret out Imperial spies.

Wampa Cave

After a wampa captures Luke, the rebel hero must use the Force to escape the beast. Minifigures can attach to the wampa's hand, but the ice monster also has an oversized turkey leg in case his prey should elude him.

Rebels on Hoth

After the rebels established Echo Base in a secret location on Hoth, it was only a matter of time before Imperial probe droids tracked them down. Very soon the rebels have to use all their technology and firepower to counter an Imperial assault.

Laser Ice Cutter

HOTH REBEL SOLDIER

The first Hoth soldiers, released in 1999, had yellow faces and brown visors. The latest minifigures have squared-off, movie-accurate ski goggles and detailed printing, which includes grenades on their torsos.

Vehicles often break down in the bitter cold of Hoth, forcing the rebels to patrol with tauntauns and one-man laser ice cutters while adapting their airspeeders to the frigid conditions. Laser ice cutters are combat speeders, with swiveling gun turrets and skirts designed to push through accumulated ice and snow.

Jedi in Hiding

After swearing allegiance to the Sith, Anakin Skywalker helps Darth Sidious hunt down the Jedi and turn the Republic into the Galactic Empire. The few Jedi who survive become refugees, hoping to avoid detection by Darth Vader and his Emperor. Obi-Wan Kenobi gives the infant Luke Skywalker to the Lars family on Tatooine and then dwells in the desert, while Yoda hides on a little-known planet in the Outer Rim.

Yoda's Hut

Yoda survives the Great Jedi Purge at the end of the Clone Wars to live in exile on Dagobah. He lands on the planet in an escape pod, which he makes into a hut. Yoda's lifestyle on the swamp planet is frugal: his dwelling is furnished with a simple bed, table, cooking pot, and barrels.

YODA (DAGOBAH)

Eight hundred years of life have taught Yoda patience, and changed his appearance. There have been many incarnations of Yoda's minifigure, including three main head types. His torso, featuring a ragged robe and bliss flute, is exclusive to this Yoda's Hut set.

BEN KENOBI (TATOOINE)

In exile on Tatooine, Obi-Wan becomes known as "Ben Kenobi." He keeps a quiet watch over Luke, Anakin's son, waiting for the day he can teach him about the Force.

BEN KENOBI (JEDI MASTER)

Obi-Wan's exile comes to an end when he receives a distress call from Princess Leia. He puts on his Jedi cloak and hood to lead Luke on a rescue mission.

Boba Fett

Son of the bounty hunter Jango Fett, Boba Fett follows in his father's footsteps to become the most feared bounty hunter in the galaxy. Thanks to his talent and an arsenal of exotic weapons, Fett brings in many "impossible" bounties. Working for Darth Vader, Fett captures Han Solo and loads Solo's carbon-frozen body into his ship, Slave I.

▶ Boba Fett's Slave I

Boba Fett inherits Slave I from his father, Jango. He has added modifications of his own, including several upgraded weapons systems. The 2010 set features an opening cargo bay, a cockpit, and wings that automatically rotate into flight mode. It also features spring-loaded cannons, a hidden missile carousel, and swiveling short-range twin blasters on the tail.

LANDO CALRISSIAN

The 2018 minifigure for smartly dressed Lando Calrissian features a beautifully textured cape.

Cloud City

After the Battle of Hoth, Han Solo and Chewbacca escape with Leia and C-3PO to a floating pleasure resort and mining colony called Cloud City, located near a gas planet called Bespin. Its administrator, Lando Calrissian, is Han Solo's longtime friend and sometime rival. The arrival of Solo and the others, however, is preceded by Boba Fett and Darth Vader, who spring a trap and lure Luke Skywalker to a confrontation with Vader himself!

▼ Duel with Vader

When Luke arrives at Cloud City to rescue his friends, Vader is waiting for him in the carbon freezing chamber. They ignite their lightsabers and duel through the chamber into a control room overlooking a huge reactor shaft. Luke is sucked through a smashed window and a final clash takes place on a treacherous gantry.

Jabba the Hutt

A gigantic, slug-like Hutt with slimy skin; an unfathomable appetite; and a large, lascivious mouth, Jabba lives to strike shady deals with other members of the galactic underworld. He is protected by thugs and hirelings on whose loyalty he keeps a careful eye. Luke Skywalker and his friends seek to rescue Han Solo from Jabba's clutches, but run the risk of falling prey to the gangster's wiles and becoming his latest victims.

Jabba's Palace

Jabba's palace once belonged to the mysterious order of B'omarr monks who continue to go about their business on the lower levels. The palace is armed against external attacks with gun emplacements and missiles, and further dangers await those foolish enough to enter. The fortress is riddled with secret compartments, trap doors, and other unwelcome surprises—not to mention the depraved thugs and criminals who call its dank passages home.

The first LEGO rancor dwells beneath Jabba's throne room, devouring those who anger the cruel Hutt. The set stacks with Jabba's Palace, with a trap door so a minifigure can fall between sets, while Jabba's minions watch from above through the grate. A portcullis keeps the rancor in its dreary pen.

Accessories include a key, pitchfork, and bucket.

RANCOR

JABBA'S MINIONS

A bevy of aliens and creatures are resident at Jabba's Palace, from guards to jesters.

BIB FORTUNA
The Twi'lek Bib Fortuna is Jabba's chief lieutenant. His updated minifigure has a fierce expression with bared teeth (set 9516).

OOLA
A green-skinned Twi'lek with printed details and a unique head piece, Oola falls through the trap door and is eaten by the hungry rancor.

MALAKILI
The human Malakili cares for Jabba's fearsome rancor. Swiveling his head reveals a tearful alternate face—Malakili is fond of the beast.

B'OMARR MONK
These strange monks house their brains in jars ferried around by spider-like droid bodies. The monks' legs are repurposed as samurai swords.

GAMORREAN GUARD
These pig-like guards serve Jabba as dim-witted muscle. This third incarnation has printed legs and a torso rich in detail.

SALACIOUS B. CRUMB
This Kowakian monkey-lizard, made from a single LEGO piece, serves as court jester. He loves to cackle at guests' misfortunes.

Jabba's Sail Barge

Jabba's Sail Barge is a giant repulsorlift pleasure craft that carries the crime lord and his undesirable entourage from his palace to podracers; gladiatorial contests; and other, shadier activities. It also transports Jabba to the Great Pit of Carkoon to watch Luke Skywalker being fed to the hungry beast that inhabits this basin in the desert.

▶ The Khetanna

No respectable—or unrespectable—Hutt is complete without an opulent sail barge. Originally just a traveling pleasure craft, the Khetanna has been upgraded with prison cells, guards, armor plating, and a custom-mounted deck gun—testament to Jabba's need for protection from rival gangs. Jabba's 2013 LEGO sail barge also has the addition of a large cannon that slides out of the heavily armored hull. Three sides of the model fold down so Jabba has a ringside view of Luke's planned execution, without the inconvenience of leaving his throne room.

▼ Sand Skiff

Sand skiffs are repulsorlift platforms used to ferry passengers or prisoners to and from Jabba's palace. Han battles with a skiff guard before Luke is forced to walk the plank over the Sarlacc pit.

Battle of Endor

The Battle of Endor takes place on the surface of Endor's forest moon and in orbit around the planet. The Empire's second Death Star orbits the moon, protected by a defensive shield projected from a generator on the moon's surface. The rebels must concentrate all their resources on a concerted strike that will ultimately bring down the hated Empire.

▼ B-Wing

The B-wing is the most powerful starfighter in the rebel fleet. Its S-foil wings can be deployed for flight and attack modes, and folded for landing. Its vast array of weapons is operated by spring-loaded mechanisms.

Chapter 3: The Rise of the First Order

Rey

Abandoned by her parents as a child, Rey has to learn to look after herself. As a lonely scavenger on the desert world of Jakku, she learns how to fly and repair ships and how to defend herself against attack. A chance meeting with the Resistance droid BB-8 soon sees her calling on all those skills to escape the First Order—and discovering new ones as a gifted Force user.

REY

Rey wears tightly bound robes to keep the sun and sand at bay on the harsh planet.

Rey's Speeder

Rey built her own speeder out of parts she found and traded on Jakku. She has equipped it with storage compartments for salvage and tools and a sophisticated anti-theft system. She wears a protective mask and goggles as she powers it through her harsh desert homeland.

GENERAL HUX

GENERAL KNOWLEDGE

Flame-haired First Order General Hux comes in two minifigure variants—one with a command cap and printed sideburns, and one with a severely swept hair piece. Both are resolved to destroy the Resistance!

▼ Transporter

Designed to deliver troops from bigger ships into ground battles, First Order Transporters are little more than heavily armored flying boxes. Even seats are considered a luxury, and stormtroopers have to stand inside as they wait for the deployment ramp to drop.

First Order Troops

The fighting men and women of the First Order are trained to be emotionless. The majority of the troops are stormtroopers and pilots, who are conditioned for combat from childhood and given ID numbers instead of names. Others are allowed to retain a small amount of their individuality as officers—though their loyalty to the organization must still be absolute.

▼ First Order Army

STANDARD ORDER

With updated armor and more streamlined helmets, standard First Order stormtroopers are easy to tell apart from their Imperial predecessors. Though they are not clones, their minifigures all have the same fierce face beneath their headgear.

RIOT TROOPER

Wearing standard First Order stormtrooper armor, riot control units carry betaplast shields and electroshock batons to subdue civilian populations.

SNOWTROOPER

Specially trained to serve in cold conditions, First Order snowtroopers wear insulated belt-capes, glare-resistant helmets, and armor with built-in heating.

HEAVY ASSAULT TROOPER

Armed with oversized blasters, heavy assault troopers can be identified by the extra equipment strapped to their chest and sometimes worn on their back, too.

FLAMETROOPER

With fuel tanks on their backs and incinerator guns in their grasp, the fearsome flametroopers are outfitted in fireproof armor and glare-resistant helmets.

BETAPLAST BALLISTIC RIOT SHIELD

FIRST ORDNANCE

Most First Order weapons are made by the Sonn-Blas Corporation—a company set up especially to do business beyond the reach of New Republic law. They can supply arms for every occasion!

▼ First Order Navy and Special Forces

The pilots and crew of the First Order Navy are essentially the stormtroopers of the skies—though they operate ground vehicles such as walkers, too. They are separate from the Special Forces, an elite branch of the First Order military whose members combine the skills of a pilot and a trooper.

BB-9E

First Order warships rely on dark, gleaming BB astromech units to make sure procedures are followed. BB-9E keeps a sharp photoreceptor out for infiltrators, saboteurs, and other threats to Supreme Leader Snoke's flagship. BB-9E has a run-in with his counterpart Resistance droid BB-8 in Star Wars: Episode VIII The Last Jedi.

▼ First Order Hierarchy

The First Order military has two distinct classes of officer. The first is made up of the soldiers in dark uniforms and matching command caps who mostly serve on bases and aboard capital ships. The second comprises the senior stormtroopers on the ground, whose rank is denoted by colored shoulder pauldrons.

Chapter 4: Specialist Sets

LEGO® Legends

In 2014, Lucasfilm reclassified the Star Wars™ canon with many stories now considered Legends. These tales come from many different eras of Star Wars history and a range of media. The LEGO Group have produced sets based on these Legends.

▼ Sith Fury-Class Interceptor

Based on the Star Wars: The Old Republic video game, this set depicts the Fury interceptor. This heavily shielded and armed starship's development is personally overseen by the ruthless Sith Lord Darth Malgus. Packed with weapons and filled with Sith troopers, these vicious craft are serious threats to the Republic and the Jedi.

VINTAGE VILLAIN
One look at Darth Malgus's burning yellow eyes and unique black cape tell you he's not one to mess with. His shoulder armor and respirator are a single exclusive piece.

► Azure Angel

The Azure Angel appears in the original Star Wars: The Clone Wars animation (2003–2005). It is a Jedi Delta-7 Interceptor that has been heavily customized by Anakin Skywalker to increase its performance. Joined by R4-P22, he must defend his ship from the evil Asajj Ventress.

▲ Republic Striker-Class Starfighter

Thousands of years before Luke Skywalker's birth, the Republic battled the fanatical Sith Empire in the Star Wars: The Old Republic video game. Jedi Masters such as Satele Shan piloted fast, nimble Striker-class fighters, assisted by astromech droids like T7-O1. The Striker includes wings and blaster cannons that fold up in landing mode, plus flick missiles and lightsaber storage at the stern.

▼ Jedi Defender-Class Cruiser

A Jedi mobile command center, the Defender has powerful sensors and communications capabilities, and appears in the Star Wars: The Old Republic video game. This set has bridge compartments, hidden storage for valuable holocrons, and twin escape pods.

Set name Jedi Defender-Class Cruiser
Year 2013	Number 75025
Pieces 927	Source Legends

▲ Republic Fighter Tank

The TX-130 Saber-class vehicle first appeared in the Star Wars: The Clone Wars video game. It is a fast-attack tank equipped with laser cannon and concussion missiles. Clone troopers normally pilot this tank, though Jedi have been known to take control.

▼ TIE/D

In the Star Wars: Dark Empire comic series, the Empire developed prototype pilotless fighters with programmable droid brains. The droid brain minifigure can be removed from the pod casing.

► Rogue Shadow

The Rogue Shadow is a unique starship found in the Star Wars: The Force Unleashed video games. It has an experimental cloaking device, sophisticated sensor arrays, and high-performance sublight engines. Darth Vader's secret apprentice, Galen Marek, and female Imperial pilot Juno Eclipse (with whom Marek falls in love) pilot the ship.

Set name	Rogue Shadow
Year	2008	Number 7672
Pieces	482	Source Legends

DUELING DARTH
The battle-damaged Vader minifigure is unique to this set. Vader's disaffected apprentice, Galen Marek, has sliced off the top of Vader's helmet in battle.

▲ TIE Crawler

First appearing in the Star Wars: Dark Empire comic series, the unusual TIE crawler marries the familiar cockpit of a TIE fighter with tread wheels borrowed from a ground-assault vehicle to make a cheap, effective option for ground combat. The treads rotate, elevating the cockpit to avoid obstacles or shoot the principal flick-fire missiles. The set comes with two shadow stormtroopers, feared servants of the Emperor.

LEGO® Creations

As well as featuring hundreds of sets based on existing settings and spacecraft, the LEGO® Star Wars™ theme has occasionally introduced its own inventions to the Star Wars universe. Designed for animated TV shows that take place in a brick-built version of the galaxy far, far away, they naturally lend themselves to being LEGO® sets as well!

▶ JEK-14's Stealth Starfighter

In 2013, the animated TV series LEGO Star Wars: The Yoda Chronicles charted the adventures of Jedi Master Yoda and a group of Padawans during the Clone Wars. The characters they met included Jek-14—a powerful Force-sensitive clone who was created by the Sith, but refused to fight for either the Separatists or the Republic. The design of the starfighter was first visualized in the Star Wars: Dark Empire comic.

◀ Jedi Scout Fighter

Jek-14 returned in new episodes of The Yoda Chronicles in 2014. Now a friend of the remaining Jedi in the early days of the Empire, he agreed to help the Ithorian Jedi Knight Noga-ta retrieve vital holocrons from the abandoned Jedi Temple on Coruscant. For this mission, he was equipped with a two-seater Jedi fighter.

▼ StarScavenger

Launched in 2016, LEGO Star Wars: The Freemaker Adventures is an action-packed animated TV series following the exploits of Force-sensitive Rowan Freemaker and his family of scrap merchants. When we first meet them, all they want is to make a living on board their modular salvage ship, the StarScavenger.

► Eclipse Fighter

When Rowan Freemaker starts to flex his untrained Force powers, he attracts some unwanted attention, including from the Sith agent Naare and the bounty hunter Dengar. Naare pretends to be a Jedi and helps the Freemakers at first, but is soon pursuing them in her powerful ship, the Eclipse Fighter!

◀ The Arrowhead

As Rowan Freemaker's Force powers grow, he experiences a vision of a powerful new ship. With the help of the seasoned Mon Calamari shipbuilder Quarrie, he succeeds in building the Arrowhead—a new kind of fighter powered by a giant kyber crystal. The Freemakers hope it could bring down the Empire!

M-OC

INITIALLY FUNNY

Droid M-OC comes with the Tracker I (75185 set). The Emperor created the hunter droid M-OC with his own hands. His name is an in-joke inspired by initials used by many LEGO fan builders—standing for “My Own Creation.”

► Tracker I

When Emperor Palpatine realizes the threat posed by the Freemakers, he dispatches the Imperial hunter droid M-OC to find and capture Rowan. The multi-talented M-OC pilots the sleek and stealthy Tracker I—a fast-moving ship with a built-in prison cell that even a Force user can't escape from!

Planet Sets

In 2012 and 2013, the LEGO Group offered a dozen mini-ships, each accompanied by a minifigure, a planet (or other celestial phenomenon) introduced in the first six Star Wars movies, and a plaque. The planets can be hung from a wire for display, and several of the minifigures are unique or reworked from their previous LEGO set appearances.

Death Star

Built in secret on the Emperor's orders, the first Death Star threatens to extinguish freedom in the galaxy, and destroys the planet Alderaan. The Death Star has a great deal of detail, from the indented superlaser "dish" to the trenches on its surface.

Microfighters

The galaxy got a little smaller in 2014 with the launch of LEGO® Star Wars™ Microfighters. Designed with key details exaggerated for a fun, stylized look, each set depicts a classic vehicle as if it were a single-seater craft, with room for a minifigure on top. Built for battle, every Microfighters set comes with flick-fire missiles or stud shooters and is made from around 100 bricks.

Sith Infiltrator

In 2012, the first iteration of the Sith Infiltrator at this scale was an exclusive release for San Diego Comic-Con. The 2019 Microfighter version is smaller, but has the addition of two stud shooters under its hull.

Clone Turbo Tank

The first LEGO Clone Turbo Tank (set 7261) from 2005 had more than 800 pieces. The 2014 Microfighters version has just 96, but still boasts 10 turning wheels, two flick-fire missiles and an exclusive clone trooper minifigure.

AAT

The blue body of the minifigure in this set marks him out as a pilot battle droid. At the controls of a Trade Federation Armored Assault Tank, he is surrounded by flick-fire missiles and a rotating, tilting laser cannon.

JEK-14'S MINI STEALTH STARFIGHTER

BRICK FACTS

Before there were Microfighters, there were four other LEGO Star Wars sets in a similar scale released in 2012 and 2013. Boba Fett's Mini Slave I, Darth Maul's Mini Sith Infiltrator, Luke Skywalker's Mini Landspeeder, and Jek-14's Mini Stealth Starfighter were all special event-exclusive sets.

Naboo Starfighter

Young Anakin and R2 bravely take part in the Battle of Naboo in this Microfighter-scale N-1 Starfighter. This ship's sleek design is created with a combination of angled and curved pieces.

Ski Speeder vs. First Order Walker

The huge First Order Heavy Assault Walker is brought down to size in this set recreating the Battle of Crait. Both vehicles come with stud shooters and another is included as part of a defensive trench build that captures the distinctive red-and-white surface of Crait in just a handful of pieces.

LEGO® Technic

LEGO® Technic is an advanced building range that utilizes gears and interconnecting rods to create complex models with moving parts. In 2000, the LEGO Group released the first LEGO Technic Star Wars models, with a pit droid, battle droid, and destroyer droid (or droideka). Since then, new LEGO Technic sets have appeared for each Prequel Trilogy movie as well as the Classic Trilogy movies.

▼ Battle Droid

The battle droid measures over 13 in (33 cm) tall when standing and can fold up for transportation. When a dial on the back is turned, its arm reaches to the side of its backpack to grab a blaster. The model also comes with spare parts to convert it into a security droid or a battle droid.

► Stormtrooper

The 13-in- (33-cm-) tall stormtrooper carries a firing BlasTech E-11 rifle blaster. A wheel in the back allows the arms to move, so the model can aim the blaster—it could even hit C-3PO's socket to blow him up!

BRICK FACTS

In 2008, a LEGO Technic model of General Grievous was issued as an Ultimate Collector's Set (set 10186). Unusually, it consisted of a mix of regular LEGO bricks alongside LEGO Technic pieces.

▼ Hailfire Droid

This sturdy model of the hailfire droid rolls on its giant hoop wheels. The central blaster gun snaps into place and flick-fires missiles. The model, which is not packaged as a LEGO Technic set, is in proportion to LEGO Star Wars minifigures.

Buildable Figures

Designed to stand up to rough-and-ready action play, large-scale LEGO Star Wars buildable figures hit the shelves in 2015. Built using ball-and-socket connections rather than traditional LEGO bricks, each figure is infinitely posable for play and display, and many have mechanical arm movements and firing weapons for full-on battle functionality.

◀ Obi-Wan Kenobi

With a stylized beard and modified clone armor, this buildable figure is based on General Kenobi's appearance in Star Wars: The Clone Wars. He stands ready for battle with General Grievous (set 75112), whose four-armed figure was released at the same time.

Ultimate Collector Series

The LEGO Group has issued a small number of highly detailed Star Wars models called Ultimate Collector Series (or UCS). Intended for older builders and primarily for display, each set includes a collector's card and, in many cases, a display stand. Most are not scaled for minifigures, though some, such as Millennium Falcon, are minifigure-scaled.

▼ Tantive IV

Princess Leia Organa's consular starship, Tantive IV (otherwise known as the Blockade Runner), is one of the largest LEGO Ultimate Collector sets, at over 2 ft (60 cm) long and almost 1 ft (30 cm) wide. The highly detailed model is made up of separate sections—front, mid, and rear engine block—built individually and then pegged together. The top and lower turbo lasers rotate, and the ship is supported on "landing gear" stands.

▼ Naboo Starfighter

The iconic yellow Naboo starfighter has fewer bricks than other UCSs, but among them are unique chrome and curved elements, which give the finished model a sleek look. The 11½-in- (29-cm-) long model features twin laser cannons, a proton torpedo launch tube, and R2-D2, as well as a display stand and plaque.

▼ Yoda

This sculptural bust of Jedi Grand Master Yoda is an impressive 14 in (35.5 cm) tall. Like the Darth Maul bust, Yoda is built in layers from the bottom upward: the instructions show a bird's-eye view from above rather than a three-dimensional view. When complete, the head can be rotated to different positions.

▲ TIE Interceptor

The TIE interceptor is captured accurately, with its long dagger-like wings (which can be folded to lie flat) and a hinged cockpit with a detailed interior featuring a pilot seat, controls, a HUD (heads-up display or transparent data screen), and several monitor screens. The model sits on an adjustable stand, which allows it to be displayed in a variety of positions.

BRICK FACTS

The year 2000 saw the release of a UCS X-Wing Fighter (set 7191) with 1,304 pieces, a gearbox to operate the S-foils, moving controls in the cockpit, and an R2-D2 minifigure. The model is nearly 2 ft (60 cm) long, with a wingspan of 18 in (45.5 cm).

Imperial AT-ST

The Imperial AT-ST, or chicken walker, stands over 16½in (42 cm) tall and is constructed from LEGO bricks and LEGO Technic elements. The cockpit interior features no details, although the model has rotating weapons, an opening pilot hatch and moving window panels.

ALSO ADVANCED

Though not officially part of the Ultimate Collector Series, large-scale models of BB-8 and one of Ahch-To's lovable porgs replicate the style and complexity of UCS sets. Both come with information plaques for display and feature ingenious working details. BB-8's head turns and his flame tool can be extended from a hatch, while the porg opens and closes its mouth when you press on its tail!

Seasonal Sets

Since 2011, the LEGO Group has released an annual seasonal set offering minifigures and parts for making micro sets of Star Wars vehicles. Children (or adults) open a window for each day of Advent for the countdown to Christmas, revealing a toy. Each seasonal set has surprises, such as a Christmas tree or a unique minifigure or two, dressed in garb appropriate for the holiday season.

BRICK FACTS

Attendees of the 2011 San Diego Comic-Con could take home that year's advent calendar in special packaging telling them to open it by December 1. Only 1,000 were made.

2011 Advent Calendar

The countdown to Christmas 2011 began for LEGO fans with a miniature Republic cruiser and ended with Yoda resplendent in a Santa costume. Other highlights included a Republic gunship with movable wings, tools and weapons racks, and a Christmas tree from a galaxy far, far away. The calendar art shows Yoda and a rebel pilot watching the Battle of Endor unfold around them.

2014 Advent Calendar

Including three festive—and exclusive—minifigures, fans were in for a treat in December 2014. The season began with an AAT and ended with one of the exclusives—Darth Vader dressed up as Father Christmas. The other two minifigures are a clone trooper with a Santa hat, who is behind door number four, and a festive astromech, which is the build on day 22. The box art reimagines the Battle of Hoth as a snowball fight!

2017 Advent Calendar

The theme for this LEGO Star Wars seasonal set is Star Wars: Episode VII The Force Awakens, and the box art has a decorated Jakku and Starkiller Base with festive fun. For this year, micro sets include a Luggabeast, Krennic's shuttle, Rey's speeder, and the Ghost. BB-8 has donned a festive hat and is on his favorite blue snowboard for the holiday.

Chapter 5: Beyond the Brick

Meet the Team

Since 1999, the LEGO Group has been bringing the Star Wars™ galaxy to life in an ever-expanding and imaginative world of LEGO® bricks!

Every brick has been chosen carefully by the LEGO® Star Wars™ design team who use their creativity and the latest technology to produce incredible builds.

Let's take a look behind the scenes to discover some of the secrets behind the success of 20 awesome years of LEGO Star Wars. LEGO Creative Director Jens Kronvold Frederiksen and Design Master Kurt Kristiansen reveal the ideas, steps, processes, and teamwork behind your favorite LEGO Star Wars sets.

"Sets based on locations need to be iconic scenes from the movies, with key characters and memorable moments."

Jens Kronvold Frederiksen

▼ Starting Out

A LEGO Star Wars set starts life with a discussion between LEGO designers and Lucasfilm to decide what the location, vehicle, or minifigure will be. For models taken from new movies, the conversation starts many months ahead of the movie's release so the models can be ready in time. For models based on the original trilogy, the LEGO Star Wars team listens to suggestions from fans. Sometimes, a set or minifigure is updated with improvements or new features every three to four years.

MOS EISLEY CANTINA (SET 75052)

▼ Sketching and Drafting

Often, the designers make sketches of the models before they start building with bricks. Or they may draft the simple model on a computer.

The designers then experiment with the bricks to develop special effects and features, such as the layering of bricks to create the effect of feathers on the Porg.

“Some of us like to start with a drawing to get it right in our own head and see how it will work.”

Kurt Kristiansen

Jens and Kurt discuss the Porg model.

This Porg set started out as a simple sketch on a sticky note.

Large eyes and open jaw reflect the Porg's alarmed character

▼ Feedback from Fans

The LEGO Star Wars team asks children to test the models at various stages of the design process. This helps the team to decide which products to develop and what features to include. They get direct feedback by seeing how the children play with the models. If one is left standing in the corner, they won't move forward with it.

The dewback from the Microfighters series is a great example of a model that's popular with children. It's simple and brick-built with movable parts. It looks friendly and kids love it.

"It is really important to us to get direct feedback from kids on the models."

Kurt Kristiansen

▼ Using New Technology

Some models are more of a technical challenge than others. Enfys Nest's elaborate helmet, for example, was created with two different types of plastic: one hard for the head part and one softer for the spikes. LEGO technology is developing all the time.

Distinctive spikes on helmet

ENFYs NEST
(SET 75215)

A line-up of minifigure head and helmet molds.

▼ True to the Movies

To make the models as accurate as possible, the LEGO Star Wars designers look closely at movie stills and on-set photos supplied by Lucasfilm.

Sometimes models, such as the Cloud-Rider Swoop Bikes from the Solo movie, are made at the same time as the movies. The LEGO Star Wars team and Lucasfilm have to keep closely in touch to make sure the details of the LEGO models match the vehicles in the films. Sometimes, the LEGO designers have an exciting chance to invent the insides of vehicles that are only seen from the outside in the movies.

When creating the LEGO Star Wars minifigures, the designers keep in mind the appearance and characteristics of the actors playing the roles. They try to make the minifigures as lifelike as possible, even down to details such as the textures and patterns of Lando Calrissian's cape.

Each LEGO Star Wars minifigure captures the personality of the on-screen character.

FINN IN BACTA
SUIT

The exclusive minifigure included with DK's LEGO® Star Wars™ Visual Dictionary: New Edition is Finn in his bacta suit from Star Wars: The Last Jedi. According to Jens and Kurt, "Finn in his bacta suit was fun to make because it was based on a humorous moment in the movie."

▼ 20 Years of LEGO Star Wars

Over the past 20 years there have been around 500 LEGO Star Wars sets created. What have been the personal highlights for the LEGO Star Wars designers? For Kurt, it was designing all the different rooms and creatures for Jabba's Palace and also the challenge of creating the BB-8 model. The first Millennium Falcon UCS was a highlight for Jens, as were the Death Star sets, which he thinks are a great family challenge because kids and parents can build them together.

► The Future ...

As to the future, the LEGO Star Wars team always keep fan requests at the front of their minds when they think about what’s coming next. The team are actively involved in the LEGO Star Wars fan community and are able to understand first-hand what the fans want.

With so many exciting LEGO Star Wars sets available, it may appear that the team have covered everything! However, there are many more models from the ever-expanding Star Wars universe still waiting to be created. The designers also look for opportunities to sneak new minifigures into updated sets. One thing’s for sure, there’s a lot more to come from the LEGO Star Wars design team—watch this space!

▼ Celebrating the Anniversary

The LEGO Star Wars team chose popular, iconic sets to refresh for the 20th anniversary. Fan favorites, such as the Battle Packs with stormtroopers, were given an update for 2019. The 20th-anniversary minifigures feature five iconic Star Wars characters. Over the years they have had new elements, but they are based on the original 1999 minifigure print cards.

Promotional Pieces

All around the world, LEGO Star Wars fans get together in small venues and giant convention centers to learn the latest LEGO news, share their creations, and encourage fellow builders. The LEGO Group often attends these events to showcase new sets and interact with its enthusiastic builders and collectors. Loyal fans are often rewarded with exclusive LEGO Star Wars sets or minifigures—the space race to locate collectible promotional items is on!

► Rare Minifigures

To celebrate 30 years of the LEGO minifigure, 10,000 metallic gold C-3PO minifigures were randomly inserted into LEGO Star Wars sets in 2007. Even rarer are the five C-3PO minifigures made of solid 14kt gold! In 2010 Boba Fett joined the highest ranks of exclusivity when two solid bronze variants were released as part of a “May the Fourth” promotion. That year also saw 10,000 white Bobas given away at toy fairs and Star Wars Days.

▼ Life-Size X-Wing in Times Square

To celebrate the May 2013 launch of the new animated TV series The Yoda Chronicles, the LEGO Group unveiled a life-size X-wing (scaled for humans rather than minifigures) in Times Square, New York. The build is an exact replica of the X-Wing Starfighter (set 9493), magnified 42 times, and consisting of 5,335,200 LEGO bricks. It took a team of 32 builders 17,336 hours (about 4 months) to construct. The event also included a LEGO R2-D2 and X-wing pilot model ready for photo opportunities and a LEGO Yoda bearing a t-shirt with the slogan “NY I Love.”

The X-wing builders had to make sure that their model, weighing 45,980 lb (20,856 kg), would be safe above the New York subway system!

The super-sized starfighter measures 11 ft (3.35 m) in height, 43 ft (13.1 m) in length, and has a wingspan of 44 ft (13.44 m).

The model was carefully built to withstand transportation—from its original base in the LEGO Model Shop in Kladno, Czech Republic, to New York and finally on to LEGOLAND® California.

LUKE'S LANDSPEEDER
(2012)

▼ Star Wars Celebration Exclusives

For Celebration 2017, the LEGO Group released an exclusive set based on Han and Luke's rescue of Princess Leia on the Death Star. Fans had to enter a lottery to granted a chance to get their hands on it.

▼ New York Toy Fair Exclusives

In 2005, at the New York Toy Fair, attendees of the LEGO Group's V.I.P. gala event received a special edition of the Darth Vader transformation set, packaged inside a special slipcase.

Fan Creations

The LEGO® fan community spans generations, reaches across continents, and bridges languages. The beauty of LEGO bricks is that you can make just about anything with them and groups of expert builders, or AFOLs (Adult Fans of LEGO), do just that. Their custom-made designs even have their own specialist term: MOCs (My Own Creations). The simple brick has been transformed into the most creative and versatile construction element in the world.

▶ Carbon-Freezing Chamber

Markus Aspacher (markus1984) took just five days to create this wonderful MOC of the Carbon-Freezing Chamber in 2013. Measuring 13 x 16 in (34 x 40 cm), it utilizes around 2,000 bricks. A Han Solo minifigure being lowered into the freezing chamber brings the whole grisly scene to life.

◀ Death Star

This detailed diorama showcases the Death Star, complete with a model of the Millennium Falcon. It was built by Austrian Markus Aspacher in 2012 and took around two months to construct. It measures 24 x 35 in (60 x 90 cm). Markus used 7,500 bricks in his creation, favoring flat tiles for a realistic, polished look.

▶ Mos Eisley

The Brickish Association is a UK-based community of AFOLs. Its members displayed their impressively detailed Mos Eisley diorama at the UK's National Space Centre and at Star Wars: Celebration Europe in 2007.

12 people built and contributed buildings, vehicles, and minifigures

Many movie-accurate details (these stormtroopers are searching for missing droids)

Sculpture is life-size!

▶ Frozen Han Solo

Artist and brick builder extraordinaire Nathan Sawaya used 10,000 bricks to create this 5½-ft- (1.7-m-) tall sculpture of Han Solo frozen in carbonite.

Tan-colored bricks were collected over many years, many from LEGO Adventurers "Egypt" sets

▼ Theed Hangar

Amado C. Pinlac (ACPin) has been building impressive MOCs for over a decade. This wonderfully detailed diorama captures the Theed hangar battle scene and includes four N-1 starfighters and an advancing Trade Federation droid army. The scene took Amado three months to build.

Anakin Skywalker takes off in an N-1 Naboo starfighter

Obi-Wan and Qui-Gon battle Darth Maul

◀ Echo Base

Mark Borlase's recreation of Echo Base took four years to build. It has motorized hangar doors, a Millennium Falcon and superbly detailed AT-ATs. Snowtroopers lower themselves from AT-ATs and advance toward the rebel lines, which are complete with laser turrets and tauntauns.

CAMP FIRE ON TATOOINE

THE BATTLE OF HOTH

FAN ART

South Korean photographer Je Hyung Lee (storm TK431) creates imaginative images using his own backgrounds and a variety of LEGO Star Wars minifigures. The scenes have a modern, humorous twist, so don't be surprised if you see a stormtrooper-versus-Jedi ice-hockey match or stormtroopers playing the guitar and toasting marshmallows around a campfire!
